OLD KIDNAP PLOT LINKED IN LINDY CASE

Today

A Sad Death.
One Peace Guarantee.
Dangerous Border.
A Wall Street Shiver.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FOLLOWING THE suicide of Ivar Kreuger, the great Swedish industrialist, driven to despair and death for lack of money that would have relieved temporary embarrassment, there comes another death infinitely more sad, that of George Eastman, the public-spirited manufacturer and philanthropist, of Rochester, N. Y.

ALL THOSE that knew Mr. Eastman, who had been in failing health for a long time, will feel certain that weakness causing mental disturbance prompted the act that ended his life.

With the deepest sorrow and sympathy, and undiminished admiration for a good man, friends will read his last words, written a few moments before death.

"TO MY FRIENDS:
"My work is done. Why wait?"

DEATH IS only an incident, life is the real thing, and the world will turn from the sad incident of Mr. Eastman's death to the glory of his long, useful, generous career.

He began work as a boy of fourteen, for a salary of three dollars a week, sixty-three years ago, and built up the greatest enterprise of its kind in the world. He employed habitually 20,000 men at good wages, which meant that he had given hundreds of millions of days' work to his fellow men.

Of his own fortune he had given away more than seventy-five millions in useful and admirable philanthropies.

HIS GIFTS were gigantic, his services to American industry were magnificent. But the most important of his achievements was his work IN ITSELF.

Perfecting and simplifying photography, he added to the value of every journey, making fleeting hours of happiness permanent. He enabled mothers to keep a record of their children's early lives, at rest and in motion. Thanks to him, millions can look back, and actually SEE happy days, gone by.

HINDENBURG'S personal victory, foreseen by all that know the German people, is hailed by the nations, as a guarantee of peace.

Hitler, young, energetic, had intimated that he would avenge "the wrongs of Germany," in connection with the 1914 war and the Versailles treaty, just as France for many years before 1914 had been promising to avenge the wrongs of 1870.

The avenging process may have to come, since men are still savages. But it ought to be reasonably postponed.

FOUR CANDIDATES ran against Hindenburg, and while he did not have a clear majority over all four, Hindenburg will unquestionably be re-elected in the "run-off" election one month hence.

THE NEXT excitement may be trouble between Japan and Russia, although those nations should be wise enough to avoid it.

An Exchange Telegraph message from Harbin, Manchuria, via London, through the Associated Press, says a Japanese airplane crossed the border, flew over Russian territory without permission, and was surrounded by Soviet Russian planes and forced down.

At Manchuli on the Siberian border, Japanese stores have been looted, and one Japanese merchant killed. A division of the Japanese army has been sent to see about it.

THIS WRITER is in possession of photographs of murdered Japanese men, women and children, so dreadful that they could not be described, much less printed. The mutilations to which the women in the photographs had been subjected, before or after death, are entirely beyond the conception of a civilized being.

These killings, accompanied by fearful atrocities, may have been the work of Chinese bandits. It may be suggested by Chinese, perhaps, that they are photographs of corpses especially prepared for propaganda purposes by the Japanese.

They will be sent to officials in Washington, that might be interested. Japanese law forbids the publication of such photographs in Japan.

WALL STREET, which means those that buy, sell, invest and gamble, decided to be frightened by Ivar Kreuger's death yesterday, and would not be comforted by the hopeful election in Germany.

That election means far more to the world and its stability than a temporary disturbance in the group of industries organized by the brilliant Swedish industrialist.

IT IS WHAT HAPPENS TODAY that interests and influences the speculation of today.

The sale of 150,000 shares of Kreuger stock in one single transaction at "the opening" was the greatest single sale in number of shares, ever recorded on the Stock Exchange.

COL. LINDBERGH and his wife continue to hope against hope, while following innumerable deceptive "clues."

The unhappy mother keeps up her courage admirably, under conditions with which all mothers will sympathize.

It is reasonable to hope that the child is alive and safe, for the kidnapers have been told by those they can trust, that the ransom will be paid, with no questions asked when the child is returned, and no effort at punishment will be made afterward.

GUILT AGAIN DENIED BY POWERS

'Bluebeard,' in Death Cell, Shows Nervousness as He Hears Latest Plea Failed

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., March 15.—(AP.)—With but four more days to live, Harry F. Powers, pudgy 'mail order Romeo,'' protested his innocence of murder today and denied that he is the ''Bluebeard of Quiet Dell.''

Powers, who will die on the gallows Friday night for the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Northboro (Mass.) divorcee, told newspapermen that he knows nothing about the slaying of two women and three children of one of them in his "horror chamber" garage, near Clarksburg. He said:

"It looks like they are going to put a great shame on the state of West Virginia by hanging an innocent man."

CONVICTED OF MURDER

Powers was convicted of Mrs. Lemke's murder. He was also indicted for the killing of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children, of Park Ridge, Ill. The bodies of all five were found buried in a shallow ditch at Quiet Dell.

Powers finished a breakfast consisting of hamburger steak, mashed potatoes, prunes, toast and coffee and then met newspapermen. The reporters' questions were submitted in writing and Powers stood nervously tapping a small table in the death cell as he answered them.

His nervousness increased today, for he has learned that the State Supreme Court for a second time yesterday refused to consider his appeal.

ALIENIST ARRIVES

Dr. W. D. McClung, superintendent of the Huntington State Hospital, who has been designated by Gov. Conley as the alienist to examine Powers' mentality, arrived at the prison today to observe the condemned man. He will report directly to the Governor.

Powers' only defense against the murder charges has been that the crimes were committed by "two other fellows." One of these, he said, is a mysterious "Charles Rogers, of Pittsburgh," whom police have never been able to locate. The Lothario was asked:

"Is Charles Rogers living or was he just a myth to aid in your defense?"

He replied

"Charles Rogers was living. I know. My attorney has secured new evidence concerning him which is important to my case. We can prove where he was seen in my company during a time when I was employed as a salesman. He used to go with me quite often as he was a salesman himself and he would come with me at times helping me with my work."

DOESN'T WANT WIFE

In response to another question, Powers said he does not want his wife, Mrs. Luella Strothers Powers, who is ill at Clarksburg, presumably from shock, to visit him in the death house. He said:

"We understand each other, and it would only intensify her sorrow to come here."

He denied that he has any other relatives, although police have learned his father lives in Iowa. He said he expected visits from "some friends."

CAROLINE J. CRITTENDEN

SEWICKLEY DEB JILTS STUDENT

Somewhere in Arizona, a Sewickley debutante who married a Tucson (Ariz.) youth after a two weeks' courtship, was honeymooning today, while her fiancee of three months worried through his classes at the University of Virginia.

The bride is Caroline Jackson Crittenden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson Crittenden, and granddaughter of Mrs. James B. Oliver. The groom is Paul Showalter, whom she met in Tucson two weeks ago while visiting there with her parents.

The news came as a surprise to friends here who remembered the announcement of her engagement December 23 to Joseph Kennear Morford, law students at the University of Virginia. Relatives said the marriage took place Saturday in Tucson, but that they knew nothing further about the whirlwind courtship.

Miss Crittenden, accompanied by her parents, left here for Tucson to visit her brother, James, a student in a preparatory school there. Relatives said they planned to stay a month.

JOHNSON FLAYS U. S. AND BANKS ON BONDS

Blames 'Greed' for Huge Losses to Public; Scores Mellon Oil Concession

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Summarizing the Senate Finance Committee's investigation of foreign loans, Senator Hiram Johnson told the Senate today that American losses were due to the "greed" of international banks and "smug complacency and supine indifference" on the part of the government.

The gray-haired California Republican, who sponsored the investigation of American losses in foreign bond issues, startled the Senate with the ferocity of his attack on international bankers.

SCATHING ATTACK

In a scathing denunciation of their activities, he said they had given "no thought to the impoverishment of American citizens who trusted them and acted apparently only for the profits."

Johnson made his most vigorous attack on loans to South American countries which, he said, were made to "maintain dictators in power," "made to go hand in hand with concessions" and "sometimes made simply to obtain securities of unproven value, to foist upon the American people."

He directed particular attention to the $4,000,000 advance by the National City Bank to Colombia in 1930, shortly after the government of that country restored the valuable Barco oil concession to the Mellon-owned Gulf Oil Company and other American interests.

Johnson said:

"Whatever excuses may be made, however, tightly the lips

DETROIT BALKS PUNY GAS CUT

DETROIT, March 15.—(INS.)—Mayor Frank Murphy today rejected the fourth reduction offer made by the Detroit City Gas Company to meet the city's demand for reduced rates.

The offer, Mayor Murphy revealed, is only 2 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for domestic consumers, or a cut of 2.5 per cent. He said it was inadequate.

The city will give the gas company a chance to make another offer of a voluntary rate reduction before the proposed ordinance, arbitrarily reducing rates approximately 10 per cent, is introduced in Council. The ordinance would mean a yearly savings of $1,500,000. If the company makes no overture before Thursday, the Mayor said, the ordinance will be introduced.

Merchants and manufacturers entered the utility rate fight today, naming committees to discuss lower electric rates.

Proxy Bride Marries Officer Second Time

17 IN COUNTY BRIDGE BUREAU OUSTED

Commissioners Swing Ax and Lop $43,060 Off Payroll; Fugassi, Kenna May Go

County Commissioners C. M. Barr and W. D. Mansfield swung the ax today to lop off 17 employes of the Bureau of Bridges with a yearly saving of $43,060 on the payroll.

Dismissal date was set as of today as furloughs were voted with Mansfield sitting as chairman in the absence of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern. Two $5,000 a year jobs abolished were those of A. D. Nutter, engineer of bridge design, and A. A. Henderson, engineer of bridge construction.

OTHERS FURLOUGHED

Those furloughed included Joseph T. White, statistician, $4,200; J. H. Wayman, senior draftsman, $3,180; D. S. Cunningham, draftsman, $3,000, and H. K. Dodge, senior design engineer, $4,960.

Two transitmen were dismissed.

In the approval of the reorganization of the Department of Public Works under the Department of Highways, commissioners reduced W. H. Kreiling, former assistant director under Norman Brown at $6,000, to an engineer at $3,900.

FUGASSI, KENNA MAY GO

In the shakeup of the road and bridge divisions, the dismissal of John A. Fugassi, head of the Road Maintenance Department, and Edward M. Kenna, superintendent of roads, with other political leaders, is expected.

The reorganization, with S. J. Chester as director of the new department, resulted in E. A. Griffith's being named chief maintenance engineer in the Bureau of Bridges and Tunnels.

NILES KIDNAPER WAITS VERDICT

WARREN, O., March 15.—(AP.)—The trial of Dowell Hargraves, 31, for the kidnaping of 11-year-old James DeJute, of Niles, was concluded this morning with the state demanding the maximum penalty of life imprisonment. Common Pleas Judge Lynn B. Griffith indicated he would render his verdict tomorrow.

The state rested today without calling additional witnesses and the defense did not present testimony. Hargraves had waived a jury trial, placing his fate in Judge Griffith's hands. The court overruled a defense motion to dismiss the case.

S. P. Mango, counsel for Hargraves, contended the state had failed to prove there was an attempt at extortion, as charged in the indictment, and therefore the state had no case. He did not deny Hargrave's part in the abduction of the DeJute boy, son of James DeJute, Sr., wealthy Niles contractor.

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—(AP.)—Betty Bronson, original "Peter Pan" of the movies, and Ludwig Lauerhaus, of Asheville, N. C., are expected to be married some time this week in Santa Barbara, Cal.

Although neither could be reached for their exact wedding plans, it was disclosed that they have filed a notice of intention to wed in Santa Barbara. Miss Bronson gave her age as 22 and Lauerhaus his as 27.

Cold Wave End Near, More Snow Forecast

Another cold wave brought thermometers below the 5-degree mark in the outlying districts of the city early today. In the city the mercury was around 10 degrees. Temperatures, however, are scheduled to rise today. A light snow was also scheduled. Warmer weather will continue, according to the forecast.

NEW LINDY QUIZ FOR PRISONER

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—The mysterious John Smith, who was questioned last week about the Lindbergh kidnaping and then moved from Tombs Prison to West Side Prison, was taken in an automobile today to the office of Richard R. Patterson, Jr., commissioner of correction, for further examination.

It was learned that Smith, whose age, occupation and address have been withheld by police, was the subject yesterday of a conference of high police officials in West Side Prison.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 15.—(AP.)—The Jersey Journal today said that William Gleason and a woman named Danusek were held incommunicado by police here in connection with investigation of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

They were picked up, the paper said, as a result of information given by a prisoner in Tombs Prison, New York City, who told of an alleged kidnap plot hatched five months ago, but later abandoned.

COLLAR KING CONSPIRACY RECALLED

Child on Yacht of Berg, Mystery Man in 1925 Case; Viewed by Police

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 15.—(AP.)—Investigators went to New York City today to question Frank Berg, prominent figure in a fantastic alleged kidnap attempt years ago, to determine whether any new clues might be obtained from him in the Lindbergh kidnaping mystery.

Berg was arrested in 1925 in connection with a reported attempt to lure Max Phillips, wealthy collar manufacturer, aboard Berg's yacht. Berg and a woman Phillips said represented herself as a countess but was really Berg's wife, never were indicted and charges against them were dropped.

SEE CHILD ON YACHT

It was learned in New York that city detectives there visited Berg's yacht before the New Jersey police arrived to investigate a report of a child being there. They found a 3-year-old child whom Mrs. Berg said she was taking care of temporarily for friends.

Berg was not on board, but Mrs. Berg said she and her husband had rented their Far Rockaway apartment and were living on the boat.

Phillips last week visited Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, and after a lengthy conversation it was announced that every effort would be made to find out if there was any possible connection between the alleged attempt to kidnap Phillips and the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. Col. Schwartzkopf, in his bulletin, said:

"Investigators from this office are in New York to question Frank Berg and investigate his activities.

VOLUNTARY STORY

"Max Phillips came to this office voluntarily and related his experience with Berg and his associates in 1925 when an attempted kidnaping of himself was frustrated by advance information. No interview was had concerning the Lindbergh case.

"The information surrendered by Max Phillips will be given the necessary attention for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the kidnapers responsible for the attempt upon him

Mix, on Horseback, To Remarry Bride

YUMA, Ariz., March 15.—(INS.)—Tom Mix, millionaire film and circus star, and his wife, formerly Mabel Hubbard Ward, circus aerialist, today announced they would be remarried in front of the Yuma Courthouse Saturday night. The bridal party will be on horseback.

Mix and Miss Ward recently were married at Mexicali, Mexico, after they had come to Yuma from Hollywood to find the courthouse closed on account of a legal holiday.

Explorer Lost in Jungle 6 Years Reported Seen

SAO PAOLO, Brazil, March 15.—(INS.)—A clue to the whereabouts of Col. P. H. Fawcett, British explorer, who plunged into the Brazilian jungles more than six years ago, never again to communicate with civilization, came to light today.

The British consul here told International News Service that he talked with a man who declared he had seen Fawcett last October in a shack between the Tocantins and Madeira rivers, in the state of Matto Grosso.

The man's statement revived hope that Fawcett, an explorer of indomitable spirit and resourcefulness, might still be alive.

Mrs. Nina Fawcett, the explorer's wife, never has felt that her husband met death at the hands of Indians, the belief expressed by Commander George Dyott who several years ago entered the snake-infested jungles in search of the missing man.

From time to time stories have come out of the Brazilian fastness that Fawcett still lives. In 1926, Roger Courteville, a French engineer, declared that he talked with Fawcett, who, he said, expressed the desire to have nothing more to do with civilization.

Fawcett's last communication with civilization was in May, 1925, when with his son Jack and a man named Raleigh Rimell, he pushed through the heavy tropical foliage in search of a lost civilization. Whether or not he ever found it, the world does not know. His son and Rimell never were seen again.

'Needy Can't Eat Coal,' Rebuke to Poor Board

Immediate relief, other than fuel, for destitute families was demanded by the County Commissioners today after a sharp rebuke to the County Poor Board.

Harry D. McIntosh, counsel for the poor board, summoned to attend the Commissioners' meeting, was asked by Commissioner W. D. Mansfield:

"Are you giving any relief except coal orders?"

"No."

McIntosh explained that Maj. J. Clyde Miller, chairman of the Poor Board is in a hospital; H. H. Dixon, another member, is recuperating from illness, and that Mrs. W. H. Henderson, widow, who succeeded her husband as the third member, is new at her task.

Mansfield declared:

"There is no use handing a hungry man a lump of coal. I know it was Dr. Henderson's plan to give immediate relief to the 3,000 hungry families dependent on the Poor Board, but nobody is getting any groceries, and you can't eat coal."

Commissioner C. M. Barr asked about the $600,000 recently borrowed by the Poor Board. McIntosh replied the money was available, but he didn't know why it wasn't being used.

On motion of Barr, the board was urged to provide relief, in addition to coal, at once.

Nothing but coal has been given out since shortly after the first of the year, it was said.

WORLD-WIDE TRIBUTE PAID TO GENIUS OF EASTMAN

FUNERAL RITES TO BE HELD THURSDAY

Loneliness for Edison and Hubbell Believed to Have Led Capitalist to Suicide

International News Service

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 15.—Worldwide tribute to the genius of George Eastman poured in to his home here today from notable figures in science, education and industry.

Public funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, which he attended. Was announced today on the arrival of Eastman's only near relative, Mrs. George B. Dryden of Evanston, Ill., a niece.

The Rev. Dr. George E. Norton, rector of the church and a friend of the philanthropist, will officiate.

The body will be cremated in accordance with Eastman's oft-expressed desire.

LONELY FOR FRIENDS

A sense of loneliness after the recent death of two of his closest friends led him to take his own life yesterday, his associates believed.

Both the late Thomas A. Edison and Walter Hubbell, lawyer and life-long associate of Eastman, were his close friends and their demise preyed on his mind, L. B. Jones, vice president of the Kodak company which Eastman founded, declared.

Added to this feeling of solitariness was Eastman's impatience with his own unwonted inactivity to which he was chained for some years past by illness.

DREADED ILLNESS

Jones said:

"He had always expressed a dread of a lingering illness and a life of uselessness."

So Jones said in paying tribute to the man who in achieving his goal of making the camera "as convenient as a pencil," built up a $200,000,000 industry and became world famous.

Eastman expressed a wish his body be cremated, his friends reported. His last written note said simply:

"To my friends: My work is done. Why wait?"

Eastman is known to have given away the bulk of the fortune he built up, and his philanthropies were said by Eastman officials to have amounted to at least $100,000,000.

BENEFACTOR TO ARTS

Himself denied educational opportunities in his youth when at 14 he was compelled to leave school to help support his mother and two sisters, Eastman endowed numerous cultural centers.

In Rochester, where his business is regarded as the keystone of the community's industrial arch, he established the Eastman Theater and Eastman School of Music.

He also lavishly supported the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra and the Rochester Civic Orchestra.

To the University of Rochester alone, Eastman is reputed to have given more than $20,000,000. He founded the Eastman dental clinic, whose director, Dr. Harry Burkhart, today was enroute to Europe to visit the heads of similar clinics in London and Rome.

He also helped establish dental clinics in Paris, Berlin and Brussels.

Many foreign governments bestowed high decorations upon the inventor for his philanthropies.

INFLUENCE IN SCIENCE

While Eastman's most notable triumph was turning photography through simplification of camera and equipment from a professional occupation to a pleasant avocation of amateurs everywhere, his influence in the field of science was great in other ways.

The transparent film he perfected aided Edison to complete the kinetoscope which was the forerunner of the modern motion picture.

Recently his laboratories announced a process to enable amateurs to take natural color photographs.

Eastman, who never married, was an ardent big game hunter. On his last African hunt, he bagged a white rhinoceros, a trophy highly esteemed by hunters because it is so rare.

Eastman Fortune Slashed By Gifts

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 15.—(AP.)—George Eastman's fortune, at one time one of the greatest in the world, was less than $20,000,000 at the time of his death, friends revealed here today.

During his lifetime the Kodak magnate accumulated about $120,000,000, friends said, but in recent years had given away about $100,000,000.

World Pact to Ban Arms Traffic Urged

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—A world treaty prohibiting traffic in arms and munitions was urged before a House committee today by Miss Jeannette Rankin, of the National Council for Prevention of War, and Miss Dorothy Detzer, speaking for the Women's International Peace League. They supported the Fish resolution which requests the Geneva disarmament conference to negotiate the multi-lateral treaty.

EXHIBITION BARNSTORMERS By Quin Hall

13-MONTH YEAR EASTMAN AIM

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 15.—(AP.)—With the late Julius Rosenwald, whose death preceded his by only a short time, George Eastman labored for years in behalf of a 13-month calendar.

Eastman put the plan into practical effect at his plant here. As far as internal organization was concerned, the whole plant and the 20,000 Eastman Kodak Company employes did business on a 13-month year basis.

Rosenwald, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., had the Rochester store of that company operated on the same basis.

Eastman wrote articles for several magazines about the 13-month calendar he had put into effect at his plant. Later he prepared a pamphlet on the subject and it was widely distributed. At one time the Chamber of Commerce of the United States joined Eastman in support of the movement.

N. Y. Suspect Held In Sales Fraud

Accused of posing as a sales manager and collecting $10 each from three men on promises of positions as salesmen, Paul E. Reid, 38, of New York, arrested yesterday, was held over by Magistrate T. D. Jones in Central Police Court today. Detective William Sullivan testified Reid had no connection with the company.

ATLANTA VOTES ON KEY RECALL

ATLANTA, Ga., March 15.—(INS.)—Citizens of Atlanta went to the polls today to decide whether Mayor James L. Key shall be recalled because he expressed an opinion the prohibition law is a failure and also because he incurred the displeasure of labor leaders.

With 30,000 persons registered, hundreds of them having enrolled their names especially for the recall election, prospects indicated a large vote. Special police guards were stationed at each of the 32 polling places.

Local reformers solicited names on the recall petitions on the grounds of Key's assertion the prohibition law was a failure. After many months' work, however, the recall movement was unsuccessful until labor leaders joined the movement because Key advocated a slash in salaries of city employes to balance the budget.

Father Burned Saving Daughter

Samuel Barcynaskas, 1915 Sarah street, was painfully burned on the hands and wrists as he beat out flames in his daughter's clothing early today. Aldona, 6, was standing in front of an open fireplace just before school time, when her clothing ignited.

KREUGER RITES IN SWEDEN

PARIS, March 15.—(INS.)—Friends, pointing to the fact that Ivar Kreuger had not taken a holiday for 15 years, today declared the financier and "match king" would not have taken his life had he not been too tired to carry on.

A younger brother of Kreuger was making arrangements to have the body taken back to his native Sweden for burial, and to help plan services to be held here.

The Paris press, despite the seriousness of the financial situation created by the violence of Kreuger's death, had nothing but praise for him. The country has been grateful to him since he lent the government $75,000,000 in 1927, making possible the stabilization of the franc.

The suicide Saturday caused the Bourse yesterday to experience its worst day since the failure of the Kreditanstalt. Losses averaged 10 to 12 per cent.

One of the reasons given for the sharp decline, which occurred despite favorable news from the German elections, was the fact that the market was in a vulnerable position due to steady rising for three weeks.

Rail Labor Heads Discuss Pay Slash

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Executives of 21 railroad labor organizations met today to discuss the employment situation and other matters affecting railroad workers.

The meeting, which is held quarterly, had for its principal subject of discussion the effect on employment of the one year reduction in pay agreed to by presidents of the principal railroads of the country and the brotherhoods.

HOUSE EXEMPTS CANNED FOODS FROM TAX

Action Lessens Opposition To Manufacturers' Levy; Debate on Bill Resumed

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The manufacturers' tax provisions of the proposed revenue bill were modified by the House Ways and Means Committee today to exempt canned and smoked fish, canned fruits, canned vegetables and canned meats.

With the further addition of food to the list already exempted from the 2¼ per cent manufacturers' tax, the committee believes it will dispel much of the opposition voiced in the House to the manufacturers' tax.

The food bill of the average man, it was said, will be almost wholly untouched by the manufacturers' levy.

The new exemptions decrease the revenue expected from the bill by about $12,000,000.

DEBATE RESUMED

The House resumed debate on the tax bill with leaders indicating they would make no efforts to push it to an early vote.

The Republican opponents of the bill were circulating a petition requesting a party caucus on the tax measure in the hope of strengthening their forces. A secret poll of the Republicans has shown a strong majority for the measure, according to leaders.

Representative Snell, of New York, Republican floor leader, reported to President Hoover today that there was a growing sentiment in the House for the enactment of the tax bill. He said as he left the White House:

"There is opposition to individual items, of course, but it is my opinion that the great majority in the final analysis will accept the bill as a whole."

MUST BALANCE BUDGET

Snell likened the measure to emergency legislation adopted in connection with the reconstruction program. The budget must be balanced, he noted, and most of the House members are now working to that end.

He said he was converted to the sales tax provision only after the committee had made an exhaustive two months' study of revenue raising methods and had decided a manufacturers' tax was the best that could be found. He called attention to the fact that whereas the new income tax schedule would be permanent, as the bill is written, the sales tax would cease automatically on July 1, 1934, and would require specific action by Congress for its continuation.

Goodrich Suffers From Second Stroke

YORK, Me., March 15.—(AP.)—Charles C. Goodrich, retired tire manufacturer, was stricken yesterday by a second paralytic shock. His condition was reported serious.

INJURED FLIERS QUIT WILDS

HOULTON, Maine, March 15.—(AP.)—After a 480-mile trip from the lonely wilderness near Clayton Lake on the Canadian border where their plane crashed yesterday, two injured commercial fliers arrived here today and were admitted to Madigan Hospital for treatment.

James Colton, of this town, and William Stanislaw, of Detroit, Mich., came down in the woods, after a high wind had turned their plane over at an altitude of 700 feet and sent it into a flat spin.

Stanislaw had a leg broken in the wreck and several cuts and bruises. Colton, who was piloting, had a deep gash over his eye. Colton walked six miles to summon aid for his unconscious companion.

The two were carried 14 miles by toboggan to Lac Frontier, and then continued their trip by train to Mattawamkeag, where an ambulance met them early today and brought them here.

POWERS CLASH ON NAVAL CUT

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, March 15.—The big naval powers of the world, defending the Washington and London treaties at today's session of the naval commission of the disarmament conference, clashed head-on with Germany and Russia, who united in a firm stand for further reductions in sea armaments.

A sharp passage of arms developed when Werner C. von Rheinbaben, of Germany, reiterated his country's refusal to accept the naval category figures in the draft convention drawn up by the preparatory disarmament commission.

The figures in the draft convention form the bases for the Washington and London treaties.

In reply to the German and Soviet arguments, British Vice Admiral A. D. P. R. Pound said:

"The Washington and London naval figures must remain intact until 1936. They have established a naval balance which any modification will disturb."

Senator Claude Swanson, of the American delegation, tactfully seconded Admiral Pound's declaration, vigorously nodding his acquiescence.

KANSAS CITY, March 15.—(AP.)—The second trial of Paul H. Kauffman, former resident of Columbia, Pa., for the confessed slaying of Avis Woolery, Webb City, Mo., high school girl, has been set for April 11.

Kauffman was sentenced to hang at his first trial. The State Supreme Court reversed the verdict on the ground that the defendant had not been given sufficient time to prepare his defence.

GOV. ROOSEVELT FACING TEST IN DAKOTA

Odds Favor New Yorker Over 'Alfalfa Bill' in Second Tryout for Nomination

WASHINGTON, March 15, (AP.)—A decision of vital bearing on the Democratic presidential candidacies of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, of Oklahoma, will be given in today's North Dakota primary.

Roosevelt started with the edge, enlisting the support of the state's party leaders long before Murray appeared on the field. The Oklahoman made a personal campaign, stumping the state. If he loses decisively, Murray may find himself moved down a notch or several notches in the list of contenders. If Murray wins, Roosevelt may find himself with an uphill fight through much of the western territory which has so far been very favorable to him.

SECOND TEST

For the New York Governor today is the second test in a three-way tryout. A week ago he took the New Hampshire delegation against Alfred E. Smith. A week from tomorrow his forces in Georgia will go up against a slate which favors Speaker Garner of Texas. In each of these contests the odds favor Roosevelt, but they are nevertheless considered indicative of trends and important in influencing other states.

The Dakota test has a bearing also on the fortunes of President Hoover as the Republican primary there is to select between delegates pledged to him and a slate which would run uninstructed but is regarded as against him.

SMITH FREES GROUP

The Democrats obtained a measure of light last night on the campaign status of former Gov. Smith through a letter he wrote Mrs. Jessie W. Sayre, daughter of President Wilson. She had asked whether a Massachusetts delegation instructed for him would be free, after his own chances at victory had faded, to vote their own second choice or would be consider them bound by loyalty to vote for a Smith choice. The former Governor replied:

"The Massachusetts delegates are entirely free and the matter is up to them."

At the same time he asserted again that he was neither for nor against any other candidate.

U. S. TO IGNORE 'BOY EMPEROR'

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—The request of the new Manchurian government, headed by Henry Pu-Yi, China's former Boy Emperor, for recognition will be ignored so far as this government is concerned, it was indicated today.

So far as the United States is concerned, it does not "officially" know of any new Manchurian state or government, although Secretary of State Stimson received a lengthy telegram from Haier Chieh-Hsi, signing himself as the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the state of Manchuria, asking for diplomatic recognition.

TOKIO, March 15.—(AP.)—News from Manchuria today led Japanese officials to express the belief that Soviet Russia will soon recognize officially the new Manchurian state under the dictatorship of Henry Pu-Yi, former Chinese boy-Emperor.

A dispatch to the Rengo News Agency from Changchun, capital of the new state, said Russia "informally indicated" it would accept Dictator Pu-Yi's nominees for directors of the Chinese Eastern Railway instead of the directors appointed by the Chinese National government at Nanking.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 15.—(AP.)—Because she smashed a sacred campus tradition, Miss Marion Shepard, of Lakewood, O., University of Michigan freshman, was on the male students' "blacklist" today.

Miss Shepard dressed herself in male attire last night and swaggered through the front door of the Michigan Union, men's club. Tradition requires that no woman ever shall enter through the Union's front portal.

Elated, Miss Shepard told men friends about it, and tried it again. The men tipped off the Union guards, who called a policeman. Miss Shepard went to jail, and after much talk about $5,000 bail and a prison term, a trembling co-ed finally was freed.

Miss Shepard by "doing something different," is trying to beat out a male sports writer for a job on the Michigan Daily, student newspaper.

FOES OF DRY LAW DRIVE FOR SENATE TEST ON BEER

VOTE IN HOUSE SPURS BLOC TO PUSH GAINS

Aim to Show Nation Ranks Against Prohibition Are Increasing in Congress

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Encouraged by the tremendous anti-dry gain in the House, the liberal bloc today began a drive for a record vote in the Senate on the question of legalized beer.

The liberals have no hope of winning this contest, but they desire to show the country that their ranks are gaining in the Senate as well as the House. The drys, meanwhile, will meet the test willingly, because they feel their secure majority in the Senate, as well as in the House, demonstrates the futility of trying to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment in the present generation.

FAVORABLE REPORT

The anti-drys will get a favorable report from the Senate manufactures sub-committee on the Bingham 4 per cent beer bill, which was the subject of lengthy hearings. This sub-committee will recommend passage of the bill by a two-to-one vote, Senators Metcalf (Rep.), of Rhode Island, chairman, and Bulkley (Dem.), of Ohio, favoring it, while Senator Hatfield (Rep.), of West Virginia, opposes it. Metcalf announced he expected the sub-committee to report this week.

The Senate Manufactures Committee must then pass on the bill. It may render an adverse report, but if it does so, the vote will be close—possibly as close as seven to six. Any kind of a report, however, will be welcomed by the anti-drys, as their sole plan is to get the bill before the Senate for a record vote.

BINGHAM ELATED

Said Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, the anti-dry leader:

"I am elated by the vote in the House. Now we shall try for a vote in the Senate."

To this Senator Sheppard (Dem.), of Texas, the dry leader, said:

"I have nothing to say about the Senate, but the vote in the House shows the utter impossibility of the wets ever getting sufficient votes to submit the question of repeal to the states."

Seek to Run Hoover On 'Moist' Platform

By EDWARD L. RODDAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The renomination of Hoover and Curtis on a "liberal" prohibition platform was being widely discussed by leading Republicans gathered here to make arrangements for the national convention at Chicago next June.

Those sponsoring the plan to liberalize the platform already have made an unofficial poll, it was learned, and assert that 535 out of the 1,154 delegates to the Chicago convention will favor the adoption of a "moist platform."

Three possible planks are under consideration, of which the so-called Guthrie plan, drawn by an ex-law partner of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, is most favored. This plan provides for a referendum on the prohibition issue and also contains some features of the old Webb-Kenyon act, which regulated transportation of liquor into dry states.

Rum Campaign Issue W.C.T.U. Head Says

COLUMBUS, O., March 15.—(INS.)—Monday's vote in the House of Representatives on the liquor control question threw prohibition into the midst of the 1932 political campaign and neither party will be able to get around it, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, of Brooklyn, president of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union, declared here today.

Allen Helps Rescue Ill Host From Fire

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—(AP.)—Valuable paintings and antiques were lost, and three firemen were injured when fire destroyed the Berwyn home of Sidney J. Halloway, well-known horse owner and exhibitor. The loss was estimated by firemen at $75,000. Halloway, confined to his bed with grip, had to be carried to safety.

Edward H. B. Allen, who recently was acquitted of the slaying of Francis A. Donaldson III, was among those who aided the firemen. Allen had been a guest at the Halloway home since his trial.

They are four years old.

Mrs. Youmans was a dancer in a Youmans show at the time of her marriage.

Chicago Opera House Mortgaged Again

CHICAGO, March 15.—(AP.)—The building corporation that owns the Chicago Civic Opera House, announced it has placed a $7,500,000 second mortgage on the property to protect a floating debt of $3,385,000. Samuel Insull, head of numerous power and electric companies, is president of the building corporation.

PARIS, March 15.—(AP.)—Jacques Rouche, director of the famous Paris Opera, resigned today, and the old rumor that the opera may be closed because of financial difficulties circulated again.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 15.—(AP.)—Members of Leon Trotzky's entourage said today that Mrs. Trotzky would not remain here as a hostage to insure the return of the former Communist leader from a three months' trip in Czechoslovakia. She will accompany him, they said, when he leaves Turkey.

Man's Prison Pay Plea Fails; Goes To Workhouse

A prisoner's request to be sent to the penitentiary instead of the workhause, to earn more money while serving his time was ignored by Judge Elder W. Marshall when he sentenced Morris Brown, 32, of Cleveland, to one and one-half to three years at the workhouse. Brown had pleaded guilty to six robbery charges, including entry of the home of Jewel Ens, former manager of the Pittsburgh Baseball team.

At the penitentiary prisoners who elect to work in the shops are given a part of the sale price of the articles they make. At the workhouse the prisoners are credited with 90 cents a day for their labor.

REED RALLIES IN HOSPITAL

ROCHESTER, Minn., March 15.—(AP.)—The condition of James A. Reed, former United States Senator from Missouri, was described by his physicians as "very satisfactory" today.

He was operated on for gall bladder trouble last Friday. Though his condition last night was such that his physician spent the night near the 70-year-old lawyer's hospital bed, his improvement today prompted the surgeon to say unless complications set in he would recover.

PARK OPPOSES SECOND KLINE VENUE SHIFT

Coll Statement Brings Rejoinder By Prosecutor; 'Fix' Plot Leads Traced

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said today he would vigorously oppose any attempt by counsel for Mayor Charles H. Kline and Bertram L. Succop for a second change of venue for their trial on charges of misconduct in office.

He made the statement when he learned Attorney Edward G. Coll, of the Mayor's counsel, said there is more reason for asking a change now than when the request was made to the Supreme Court, the granting of which transferred the trial to Butler County. It was postponed to May 2 because of alleged attempts to "fix" the jury, eight persons being indicted.

District Attorney Park is assisting District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, of Butler County, in running down several leads, including the possibility of a "master mind" in the alleged jury fixing plot. According to word received here, District Attorney Negley expects to call some of the defendants for sentence or trial next Monday.

Park was visited by several officers from Butler County, assigned to the case. They took back with them the $5,000 bond of Robert Cunningham, Allegheny County contractor, accused of conspiracy and embracery. Cunningham it is reported, has done some work for the county. A bonding company went on Cunningham's bond, bail being fixed at $2,500 on each charge. It is reported Cunningham had the names of four jurors on his person, when arrested.

Mrs. Mary Daugherty Scott, wife of a Pittsburgh policeman, it is expected, will be arrested in a day or two. She is supposed to be in West Virginia. She, too, was indicted on charges of embracery.

BAN ON SOVIET GOODS REFUSED

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—The 1930 tariff act contains no authority for a blanket embargo on Soviet Russia products. Secretary of the Treasury Mills told a delegation of congressmen and representatives of 100 industrial and patriotic organizations today.

The group asked that all Soviet commodities be barred from the United States as products of forced labor. It was contended the Treasury had the authority to place the embargo under Section 307 of the tariff act.

Mills said if Congress desired the exclusion of all Soviet products it should state this intention in the law. The Treasury will continue to consider each individual shipment of goods from Russia to determine the circumstances surrounding production, although there was admitted to be difficulty because of the inability of the government to send agents into the Soviet republic.

APACHE'S TRIBE ALARMS DEATH TRIAL TOWN

Indians Circle Courthouse; Testimony Taking Begins In Co-ed Murder Case

International News Service.

GLOBE, Ariz., March 15.—White man's justice moved swiftly today with a jury of 12 men selected on the first day of the trial of Golney (Mac) Seymour, 21, Apache Indian, charged with the murder of Henrietta Schmerler, 25, Columbia University co-ed.

Taking of testimony was to start today with John Street, United States Department of Justice agent from El Paso, Tex., as the first of the government's 26 witnesses.

Some townfolk were alarmed as Indians by the scores continued to come into Globe afoot, on horseback and in "tin lizzies" from the Apache, the White River and San Carlos reservations.

They camped in a circle around the courthouse last night and were up early today.

FIRST TRIAL OF KIND

It was the first time a member of the once fierce and mighty Apache tribe had been tried on a charge of killing a woman.

Among the Apaches thronging this little mining town was one whose only name is "101" wearing a headgear of turkey feathers which his father, a fighter with Geronimo, gave him.

Also among the tribesmen were young Seymour's parents and his young and pretty squaw.

Wheels of the law moved swiftly—in contrast to the recent trial of Winnie Ruth Judd, the "double trunk" murderess, in another Arizona courtroom this year. Within eight hours after the Indian's trial was called yesterday by Federal Judge Albert Sames a jury had been selected.

Seymour, the government said, courted Miss Schmerler last summer while the beautiful white girl lived in a lonely cabin on the Apache reservation and gathered data about Indian customs she had intended to include in a thesis for an advanced degree in anthropology from Columbia University.

TELLS OF QUARREL

On the night of July 18 Miss Schmerler and Seymour rode under the moonlight to an Indian dance some miles distant. After they had gone a few miles, Seymour declared, a quarrel resulted. Seymour said Miss Schmerler had a knife.

Five days later the girl's body was found in a ravine. She had been attacked, physicians said, and her skull crushed with rocks.

Seymour was arrested in October and, according to government investigators, confessed that "I killed her to keep her from telling the white men about us."

Seymour was pale and silent as he sat in court. He had discarded the traditional Indian costume for white men's clothes, including a light green sweater, a white shirt, corduroy trousers and brown shoes.

LABOR DEMANDS RADIO RIGHTS

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, charged before a Senate committee today that the Radio Commission "exercised prejudice" in denying labor a cleared channel voice on the air.

Indorsing the Hatfield bill to give labor a cleared channel, he said his organization's "rights and claims have been wholly disregarded" in the commission's action on an application from Station WCFL of the affiliated Chicago Federation of Labor.

Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, remarked that the principal objection that probably will be lodged against the measure is that it would single out one group for special favor.

Replying, Woll said:

"The stations today are practically all owned by the employing class and the employed or wage earning class has no voice."

He added that when he himself speaks over an existing channel station, his remarks must be satisfactory to the "corporate interests" who control it.

Pittsburgh Slayer Given 7-20 Years

MEDIA, Pa., March 15.—(INS.)—William De Grasse, of Philadelphia, one of four men convicted of the slaying of William Schnatz, Primos gas station operator, last August, was sentenced to die in the electric chair today.

Of the other three convicted men, James J. Dillon, Jr., of Pittsburgh, received 7 to 20 years in prison; Charles Wollner, Philadelphia, 10 to 20 years, and "Whitey" Ferguson, also of Philadelphia, a life sentence in Eastern Penitentiary.

POPE MAY YIELD TO CARDINALS

VATICAN CITY, March 15.—(AP.)—Opposition in the college of cardinals was reported today to be causing Pope Pius XI to reconsider his plan to abolish the seven suburban bishoprics around Rome which have been held for centuries by cardinal bishops.

The new plan is that the cardinal bishops would retain episcopal titles but the dioceses would be administered by suffragan bishops appointed by the Pope. This is the first time in many years that the college of cardinals has offered objection to a papal plan.

The suburban dioceses bring each of the seven cardinal bishops an annual revenue of $50,000 each.

CATTY SENATE SEEN BY PRESS WOMEN

Prominent Guests Applaud Writers' Club Lampoonery Of National Politicians

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Senator from Ohio last night called the Senator from Maine a "catty little upstart."

But it was all in a spirit of fun, as the Women's National Press Club glimpsed forward to 2032, with the United States Senate composed entirely of the fair sex.

The occasion was the annual banquet of the club, which lists among its members many of the foremost female writers in the county. Their lampoonery drew gales of laughter from a distinguished array of guests, including Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, the wives of all the cabinet members and the six women representatives in the House.

SPIRITS WELCOMED

A "spirit" brought down from the stratosphere was the medium about which the lampoonery centered. The strange visitor was greeted by the most popular spirits in the United States—bootleg liquor and "ghost" writers. The latter sang a saturical ditty, "His Very Own Story in His Very Own Words."

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, the Vice President's sister, who is campaigning for the Republican National Committee, was made the subject of a "Gilbert and Sullivan song, with words by "Winnie Watch-All" running:

"She's filled with facts and figures all varied and profuse,
But Dolly's really running in hopes that she'll reduce.
Though her arguments are weighty, she's no mean antagonist,
And here's a secret, hist! I've got her diet list."

TEA CELEBRATION

Mrs. Sol Bloom, wife of the associate director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, presided over a "Martha Washington Bicentennial Commission" meeting to celebrate Martha's birthday by the quaffing of a billion cups of tea throughout the land. The spirit of Martha broke up the meeting by denouncing the commission for seeking to reveal her birthday.

Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, a member of the club and editor of the Washington Herald, satirized her dynamic self in a skit of her own.

The exclusively feminine audience was treated to the sight of a chorus extracting hoarded money from their neatly filled silk stockings, with "Mr. Hoover" trying to get it.

President Hoover's Christmas shopping pictures drew this caption from the club's "city editor":

"He found $1,000,000 worth of publicity in a 5 and 10-cent store."

P. R. R. BATTLES CROSSING BILLS

COLUMBUS, O., March 15.—(INS.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad protested today against being compelled to share in the cost of grade crossing eliminations.

Vice President J. F. Deasy, of Pittsburgh, addressing the Ohio Valley Shippers' Advisory Board, demanded that the expense be placed "where in all fairness it belongs—on the highway system and its vehicular traffic."

Under existing highway procedure, the railroad ordinarily pays 50 per cent of the cost of bridges to eliminate traffic hazards and state and county divide the remainder.

The railroad executive's address was in response to a recommendation that the Interstate Commerce Commission repeal the act which bars railroads from earning more than 5¾ per cent on investments.

Attempting to show the need of such action, he said the railroads spent $30,200,000 in grade crossing eliminations alone in 1930.

Gandhi's Wife Sentenced Second Time as Revolter

BARDOLI, India, March 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. M. K. Gandhi, wife of the Mahatma, was arrested again today and sentenced to six months imprisonment for participation in the civil disobedience campaign.

She was arrested first on January 11, after her husband had gone to jail, and served six weeks.

BOMBAY, India, March 15.—(AP.)—A woman poet and enemy of the feminist movement yesterday was appointed acting president of the All-India National Congress and thus became the leader of the Mahatma Gandhi's civil disobedience in India. She is Mme. Sarojini Naidu.

This will not be Mme. Naidu's first initiation into leadership of the Indian philosopher's forces against British rule as she was appointed to a similar post late in 1930.

Mme. Naidu succeeds Abulkalam Azad as Congress president who was arrested last Saturday.

Mme. Naidu once traveled in the United States to lecture against a book that she felt conveyed a false picture of India to the American people.

JOHNSON FLAYS U. S. AND BANKS ON BONDS

Blames 'Greed' for Huge Losses to Public; Scores Mellon-Morgan Concession

of American representatives abroad may be sealed despite the pretense of protecting confidential communications that only international banks may know, we find the controversy about the Barco concession running side by side with the controversy about withheld moneys of the National City Bank and the concluding episode of the controversy, the passage of the Barco concession and the payment of the amount of the loan withheld.

"Thus the Mellon interests received their due, the Colombian government got its money, and the state department kept its secrets."

STIMSON REFUSAL

In months [illegible] State Department secrets [illegible] referred to Secretary Stimson's refusal to turn over to the [illegible] privileged, confidentially [illegible] necessaries exchanged between departments as references in Barco concession.

A $4,000,000 [illegible] which has been contracted [illegible] by the National City Bank a year before was finally [illegible] Colombia 10 days after the Barco concession was ratified.

Johnson said that neither its word nor deed was the government "able to do much for those who hold $100,000,000 of Colombia bonds [illegible] possible default," he added.

"It can, however, when the occasion in its opinion demands it, act for the Barco concession owned by the Mellon or the Morgan interests in Colombia and be the go-between in a short term loan of the National City Bank to that country."

COMMISSION CITED

Turning to the $15,000,000 commission paid to Jose Leguia son of the former president of Peru for aiding in the negotiation of $100,000,000 [illegible] country which are now in default, Johnson said:

"If this sum had been paid by the international bankers and they themselves had furnished the money and it was now their loss, we might pass it by with a mere reference, but the bribe, for bribe it was said for the privilege of selling unsound Peruvian securities, came out of the pockets of innocent American investors."

Taking in the whole picture of American loans abroad since the war, Johnson said it was a sordid tale, at once grotesque and tragic," and asserted the investigation had disclosed "certain basic facts which enabled us fairly to understand and thoroughly to resent what has been done to the investing American public."

He described it as "a game played with gullible people and the stakes appropriated by the supermen of finance with utterly unrestrained dipping of investors."

BROKERS ASSAILED

The international bankers Johnson said, connected the intimate and confidence of their customers. He added:

"The high moralists among these bankers will doubtless persuade our government, if essential to protect their own holdings, to grant further moratoria, and indeed, if they can have their way, to scale down the debts due to all of the people of the United States that they may realize their own."

Johnson said that in the keen competition among bankers for foreign loans, rivalry was so pronounced that precautions and productivity were forgotten and only profits remembered. He went on:

"The blame for what has happened may in part be laid at the door of the American public. But Americans have been taught not only confidence in their bankers but something like reverence for them."

VAST DEPRECIATION

Johnson listed a depreciation of $742,000,000 to the American public in loans of $1,600,000,000 to European countries, and a depreciation of $1,175,000,000 out of $1,600,000,000 of loans to Latin American countries. He said:

"It is utterly inconceivable that international bankers did not know what the best informed public opinion of Latin America was fully cognizant of. The bankers simply did not heed the facts. They gave no thought to the impoverishment of American citizens who trusted them.

"They acted, apparently, only for the profits. They were perfectly willing by their loans to maintain dictators in power and to be parts to the suppression of every natural right of citizens of South American republics.

"Indeed, they contributed the money in some instances, for the destruction of liberty itself, and heavy upon them is the responsibility not only for the financial ruin of a vast number of American citizens, but for the destruction of personal and political rights in Latin American states."

FACTS CONCEALED

Johnson said the bankers "not only concealed the facts and violated the fiduciary relationship, which should have been held inviolate, but to give a false appearance to the value of some of their loans, they deliberately 'rigged' the market."

Among the "sad lessons" the American people have learned in the last two years, he said, was "that their government is little concerned with them."

He said the State Department's statement that it had "no objection to the loans gave Americans the impression that their rights had been safeguarded.

He cited a letter written by a Commerce Department official in 1927 to one of its representatives in South America saying:

"We are builders, promoters, even propagandists, although never to such an extent that we fail to recognize and point out the difficulties."

Johnson continued:

"Behind a governmental policy such as this, the worst of international bankers may hide and the meanest exploiters may skulk."

BRADDOCK FIRE PERILS SISTERS

Three sisters, members of a pioneer Braddock family and an infant, were rescued today when fire destroyed the old Nicholas Behr homestead at 610 Braddock avenue, according to a police report. They were Elizabeth, Teresa and Lena Behr. The infant is the 18-month-old son of Mrs. Angela Metzgar.

Police said James Sorels, Negro, of 616 Chestnut way, North Braddock, discovered the fire and aided firemen in rescuing the three sisters and the baby.

Sorels said he found the second floor of the two-story frame building filled with smoke and flame when he and a fireman went to arouse the women. Mrs. Metzgar was in the lower part of the building and did not know of the fire until she was warned by Sorels. Elizabeth Behr told firemen:

"We might have been burned to death. We knew nothing about the fire until we were awakened."

Fire Capt. Michael Sabol, who, with Sorels, assisted the sisters, said he was at work on the second floor when one of the sisters returned seeking some hands. He took her out a second time. Sabol placed the loss at $7,000.

SEEK BANK CASH FOR INDUSTRY

A plan for use of government credit to provide money for the stimulation of industry and agriculture through banks was being devised today by a special committee of the Allied Boards of Trade which will be submitted to Congress for consideration.

The plan, approved last night at a meeting of the board of directors, incorporates the following proposals:

Depositing of government bonds in banks, the proceeds of which are to be loaned through usual banking channels to the banks' regular customers.

Responsibility placed upon banks rather than the government for the security of loans.

Funds would be available for industry, agriculture, construction and mortgages or other approved bank loans. Loans not available for stock speculation and would be certified to government by the bank and borrower.

The special committee includes C. V. Tiers, chairman; W. G. Negley, Ralph S. Boots and George A. Young. The prepared bill will be submitted to the next directors' meeting.

Niehaus of Altoona in 1921, today was returned to the penitentiary after conviction of robbing freight cars. He was sentenced to serve 18 months to three years and an additional term of 10 years for violating his parole. Family Flees Fire Damage Set at $2,000

Fire in a two-story brick duplex at 7422 Penfield court this morning caused $2,000 damage, according to Battalion Chief Fred S. Beckett. Dr. C. J. Sapp and wife, occupants of the second floor, discovered fire in the clothes chute and fled after sounding an alarm. The first floor was unoccupied. An overheated furnace is believed to have caused the fire, Chief Beckett said.

"Young People have no monopoly on brilliant sound teeth"

Say many who started to protect their teeth properly years and years ago

Men and women, happy in the possession of sound teeth, will freely admit as a rule that they started to safeguard them years before.

It is known that half the adult teeth lost are due to pyorrhea. It is also known that four people out of five past the age of forty are likely to have this fearful trouble with their gums. Still more important is the fact that pyorrhea may be working five years, ten years, even longer, before it is ever seen or felt. The moral of this is: don't wait for danger signals.

Remember: you can't "fool around" with pyorrhea. You simply must have professional dental advice about twice a year and when you take up seriously the home treatment of your teeth, it will pay to use a toothpaste invented by a dentist. Dr. R. J. Forhan devoted a lifetime to pyorrhea treatment. His professional formula is used by thousands of dentists and his home formula is embodied in Forhan's Toothpaste. It's the finest toothpaste money can buy, with an extra-protection feature in its special formula. Don't let pyorrhea get started. Use prevention. Use Forhan's. Use it twice a day—old and young. It's never too early to start the children on Forhan's, the double-duty toothpaste, at all drug stores.

Later they announced they had vindicated ... Roma and associates from any connection. They did not say who Roma was. In Denver a Joseph T. Roma, reputed gang overlord, who recently took a plane trip to New Jersey said any mention of his name was "silly."

Kidnapers of Lindy Baby Left No Fingerprints

TRENTON, N. J., March 15.—(INS.)—No fingerprints were left by the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, state police revealed today.

The latest bulletin of H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey state police said that no sets of fingerprints were found in the nursery from which the child was snatched on March 1, and no fingerprints of the criminals have been discovered.

The bulletin issued by the police answered some questions submitted by newspaper correspondents, but ignored others. The questions asked and the answering bulletin were as follows:

QUESTIONS

"Is it true, as reported, that two sets of fingerprints were found in the nursery and that they failed to check with any on record?

"It is understood that a charred piece of cloth, possibly that of a baby's suit, was found in a two-room cabin on Sourland Mountain. Is there anything to this?

"What are the latest developments?

"Can you give us the addresses of the places where Ollie Wheatley worked in the last five years? Wheatley is the Lindberghs' butler.)

"To clean up the question finally, will you please tell us where the Lindbergh family dog was at the time of the kidnaping and where the dog was usually kept when on the premises?

"Have any police reports relative to the Lindbergh case been sent here from the South?

"Has Col. Lindbergh made any plans to leave Hopewell before 8 a. m. today. If so, please tell us where he is going."

POLICE ANSWER

"No sets of fingerprints were found in the nursery. And no fingerprints of the criminals have been discovered.

"Many articles of baby clothing in all kinds of conditions have been reported to the police.

"In each instance these have been investigated and none has been found to be in any way to be connected with this case.

"It has been repeatedly stated that the dog was in the kitchen and servants' dining room during the evening, but that most of the time he was in the kitchen.

"It was usual for the dog to be in the servants' quarters and he was in the usual places on the evening of the kidnaping.

"Most of the details sent out Monday are still out in continuation of their respective investigations. No orders have been issued for any recheck of incinerators in this vicinity.

"The details reporting back have not discovered anything of any importance but have exhausted certain clues and information which they were sent to investigate.

"No word has been received from any authorities in the South."

Mexicans Lend 'Aid' To Lindy Baby Hunt

MEXICO CITY, March 15.—(AP.)—Mexicans upset over the misfortune to a young couple who fell in love here are doing their best to help Lindy and Anne get their baby back. People who get tips from ouija boards, dreams and numerology are overwhelming the police with advice.

Kidnaping Version Credited to Anne

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—When two weeks ago tonight the nurse, Betty Gow, cried out to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh ... the baby is gone," the first act was to seize his rifle and ... search of the ... kidnapers.

A detailed account of the hours after Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was snatched from his crib ... exclusively ... was made ... today.

Mrs. Lindbergh, the former Anne Morrow, was one of the few persons most closely ... in the events of that night. The others were her husband and the baby's nurse.

Mrs. Lindbergh's story ... gained ... from a double ... was as follows:

On Saturday afternoon, February 27, she and the baby arrived for a week-end at Hopewell, after two weeks' absence. Although the Lindberghs had made frequent weekend trips to Hopewell, they had stayed at the Morrow home on the previous two weekends. Col. Lindbergh arrived late ... day.

SENT TO DRUG STORE

In the evening, the baby developed a cold, which grew worse in the next two days. Wheatley, the ... was sent to a drugstore for ... and chatted with the ... who said he had similar ... at home. Later he went to the store to buy a thermometer, telling whoever waited on him it was to take a child's temperature.

On Tuesday morning, when the cold still lingered, Mrs. Lindbergh summoned Betty Gow from Englewood and she arrived about 1:30 p. m. with Betty attending to the child, the mother went for a walk in the afternoon and returned about 5 p. m.

Betty sewed an extra flannel shirt for the child and he was put to bed about 7:30 p. m. When he was snugly tucked in, Mrs. Lindbergh left his room before Betty. The window had not yet been opened and the lights were still on.

BABY ASLEEP

About half an hour later, while Mrs. Lindbergh was sitting at her desk in the living room downstairs, Betty stopped on her way to the kitchen to say that the child had gone to sleep.

Writing and listening for the sound of Col. Lindbergh's car, Mrs. Lindbergh once thought she heard car wheels turn on the gravel driveway outside. She listened and concluded she was mistaken, for it was not until 20 minutes or so later that she heard his car really approach.

They had dinner, sat by the livingroom fire for a short time, then Mrs. Lindbergh went to her room and the Colonel settled down to read. Getting ready for bed, Mrs. Lindbergh found she had left her tooth powder in the baby's bathroom. She went and got it without switching on the light.

BETTY BREAKS NEWS

Soon afterward Betty ran to her mistress and asked if Col. Lindbergh had taken the baby. Finding that Mrs. Lindbergh didn't know, she ran out and sought the Colonel. The mother, following, met her husband coming upstairs. She asked:

"Did you take the baby?"

The Colonel, his face grim, made no answer. Miss Gow had already told him the awful news. Running to a closet, he seized his rifle and disappeared in the darkness outside the house.

Dressing frantically, his wife started a search of the house. There was no sign of the baby. Once she fancied she heard a cry near a woodpile, but found it must have been only the wind.

An investigation was started after Boyce asserted three friends had asked him in January to go to New Jersey and kidnap the Lindbergh baby and that on March 4 they came to the Winchester Hospital where he was a patient and showed him a baby which fitted the description of the kidnaped child.

CHESTER BELLAS

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—"A few years ago I was made miserable by bronchial trouble and catarrh in my head. I had no appetite, my stomach bothered me, I had indigestion and sour stomach. Naturally I had no pep or energy and felt out of sorts," said Chester Bellas of 81½ Oxford St. "I heard of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and from the very first bottle I felt like a new man. I used only a couple of bottles of the Discovery but it surely did the trick. It cleared up that bronchial condition and I could breathe without difficulty and in a natural way. I rested well at night, no longer had indigestion and in fact felt a thousand per cent better after using it."

British Journalist Expects Russia, U. S., England to Show Way To Orderly Economic Life

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

S. H. Ratcliffe, noted English journalist, who addressed the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning, expects either Russia, England or America to show the way to an orderly economic life within the next 10 years. Mr. Ratcliffe spoke on "Whither America? An English Guess," which he termed "an audacious subject," basing his "guess" on his annual trips to this country made over a period of 18 years, visits which he has made not as a tourist, but as a thoughtful student of affairs.

He discussed first the unique national community life of the United States," then asked a few questions on the country's probable political development and concluded by touching on America as a world power. America's stoppage of migration has been followed by Italy and Russia and this country has taken the lead in a movement that is now universal in the English speaking world, the age for the migration of people has come to an end especially in English speaking countries, Mr. Ratcliffe said, adding that America's growth as a national community would therefore be slower.

National agencies will be continued, some great cities may be bankrupt, some great men may try unsuccessfully to close the schools and within half a lifetime those who are now going to school will have created a unified integrated national community, Mr. Ratcliffe guessed." He also said as judged by European standards America will develop into a conservative nation by comparison with the roads that Europe is traveling.

Under present economic stress shorter working hours and shorter working weeks will come and the country will be confronted with the problem and responsibility of culture in connection with leisure.

Mr. Ratcliffe said the American is rare who respects a politician or considers politics a reputable business and that what should come in the next generation is that the whole business of government should be subjected to deep parliamentary study. Reform will come through city and local governments, he believes. He feels that America, because of her complete isolation should be able to bring a dispassionate and impartial viewpoint to any international question and, for this same reason, that this country has a marvelous opportunity in the China-Japan situation.

The famous "entangling alliances" phrase by the way, is to be found nowhere in Washington's writing, the speaker declared, but was really used by Thomas Jefferson.

The Brighton Women's Club is to meet with Mrs. F. E. Jamieson on Thursday.

A general discussion of the disarmament conference will be held and Mrs. Roscoe Sanborn will have a paper concerning Edna St. Vincent Millay.

Mrs. Roy A. Shipley is chairman of tables, tallies and decorations for the St. Patrick card party which the Outlook Alliance will give Thursday in the Congress of Clubs.

A number of theater parties will be held by groups and organizations at the Allegheny County League of Women Voters benefit, the Cornelia Otis Skinner recital at the Alvin Theater tonight.

night. Mrs. R. V. Beckett, the speaker, has "Health in the Public Schools" as her subject. The Ben Avon League meets tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. A. McKee, Church avenue, to hear Mrs. A. H. Bowman talk on "World Paradoxes" and Samuel Fung, Chinese student, discuss "The Manchurian Situation."

On Friday the Forest Hills League will meet in the Municipal Building and will be entertained with a debate on "National Planning" between the debating teams of the Washington University, St. Louis, and the University of Pittsburgh.

For the first time at a southwestern district meeting of the State Federation there will be a motion picture booth when the annual session opens tomorrow in the Twentieth Century Club. Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert, district chairman of motion pictures, will be in charge and has asked that all motion picture chairmen register with her.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Allegheny Commandery No. 35, Knights Templar, of which Mrs. John R. Engel is president, will give a card party tomorrow evening in the North Side Masonic Temple. Mrs. R. B. Ross is general chairman and Mrs. W. R. Tyler her assistant.

SPRING MODE BRIGHTENED BY COLORFUL ACCESSORIES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 15.—Gloves go hand in hand with smartness these days. No more is it a matter of just any old pair of gloves, or even no gloves at all. For the glove has become an extremely important member of the accessory family and designers in this field are working overtime to create new and interesting designs that are wearable and novel without being overdone or bizarre. The most important color combinations for general spring wear are black with white and navy blue with white. Of course there will be much eggshell and beige for wear with costumes in these colors when black or brown accents are not used in connection with beige especially. Black with touches of silver obtains in the accessory field when it comes to the very important bag with shoe combination that is finding such favor this spring. New evening gloves are also being shown and all in all it looks like a grand season for the glove and shoe people. Of course we buy such accessories carefully with a thought to their relation and usefulness in connection with our wardrobe.

* * *

TODAY WE HAVE sketches of some of the newest gloves put out by the house of Perrin. We think that even if you are not very keen about evening gloves that you will fall a willing victim to the charms of the model here shown. The gloves are of elbow length and are fashioned of handmade silk filet with a hand-embroidered design running from the back of the hand to the elbow. A lacy edge is worked into the top of the glove in a filet stitch. The daytime glove is of kid in black and white. The stitching on the fingers and wrist is white and the ribbing on the back of the hand is done in heavy white twist. The gauntlet wrist of white kid is open on the outer edge but is laced across the opening with a black silk cord.

* * *

THE SHOE and purse ensemble is being shown in the Hellenic spring collection. Both pieces are of heavy black crepe de chine with appliqued strappings of black patent leather and a tiny silver buckle. The heel is of black patent leather.

Should Wives Be Expected To Like Housework?

If some married women dislike domestic work—if they're healthier and happier standing behind a counter somewhere, or pounding a typewriter, or selling insurance—

Should they be allowed to be happy in their own way, or should they be expected to wash, and dust, and scrub, willy nilly, just because they're women and wives?

Those are the questions Maida is asking the gang today. She herself would rather work in a factory than cook a meal and red up a house.

"And why shouldn't I be allowed to?" she asks.

Well, why shouldn't she? Can you tell us?

DISLIKES HOUSEWORK

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I've been reading lately in your columns the old, old controversy about working wives, and it seems to me that if married women were considered human beings there would be no question about their right to work if they want to.

"Nature intended all living things to mate and have offspring, but certainly nature never intended that a woman must do housework just because she becomes a wife and a mother, any more than she intended a doctor to become a plumber, just because he became a husband and a father.

"I learned while still a very small child that I disliked housework. My mother always made me do it, and I regretted and dreaded the hour when school would be out, because there was always some hated task at home.

"When I was 14 I went to work in a factory. At 15 I was independent, with no home, paying my own board and buying my clothes with the little I was able to earn. Yet I was happier than I had ever been in my life.

ENVIED WORKING GIRLS

"After five years I married, believing that I wouldn't mind housework so much if I could do it in my own way. But how mistaken I was! I was miserable for five years. There isn't much joy in doing housework, even for those you love, when you know someone else could do it so much better. I envied all the girls who went out to work every day.

"Then I got a job. There followed several happy years, till circumstances forced me to stop working for a while. Finally I began doing extra work, and not having many idle days, I was contented then. Soon I was offered a steady job, but I refused it, because work was becoming scarce and my husband was working.

"Several times during the following year I was offered steady jobs by two different men. I refused them, too. Now there is no longer any extra work, so I find myself out altogether, and now my husband learns that he may be laid off.

HAS A GROWN SON

"Don't you think that it would have been better for me to have taken one of those positions and spent the money giving some needy woman my housework and laundry to do? No one expects a millionaire to give up every dollar in times like these, except barely enough to live on, so why expect every married woman to give up her little salary? No one can be healthy or happy doing work daily that they hate.

"I have a grown son and have always been complimented on what a fine boy he is. I have noticed that lots of times working mothers have fine children. They keep in touch with things and have more judgment often than women who know nothing but home.

"Anyway, why shouldn't women be allowed to be happy in their own way?

"MAIDA."

What's your answer, Stranger? Have women, even if married, a right to live their lives the way they want to live them—or must they be crammed into a certain mold because they're women?

Twenty Is an Ideal Age for Girls to Marry, Fay King Advises Them

By FAY KING

At 16 a girl is in love—with romance.

The more impossible a romance is the more romantic it seems. Those who elope at this age too often regret it a few years later.

Twenty seems an ideal age for marriage. Her mind will guide her heart then. The young men of her own age are free to choose and be chosen.

The girl who waits until 30 to marry will find the men she should have accepted married to someone else.

She must now choose from settled bachelors, widowers, or divorced men. Few will consider young men who were children when they were 20.

Thirty is a little late to begin raising a family, though many marriages even later than that have been happy.

Madge and Dicky Return from Vacation

"Oh! try not to burst, Junior." I laughingly admonished my son, when he had told me over the telephone that he and Roderick would "bust" if I didn't get home pretty soon. "Just think! It's less than a day now before I come home. We'll be there some time tomorrow. You surely can keep from bursting until then."

"Let me talk to him." Dicky moved quickly toward me and took the receiver from my hand. That he did not wish Junior to talk any longer to me was evident.

"Hello son," he said, "what's the trouble?"

I could hear Junior's excited high-pitched tone answering, but could not determine what he said.

"I know, I know," Dicky said soothingly at last. "You and Rod have been very good boys, I am sure. Just keep it up, it won't be long now."

"What's that?" as Junior evidently put a question. "No no, I say, she doesn't."

I saw him turn his head slightly toward me as he spoke, then jerk back again as if he had not meant to make just that answer to him.

"Yes, she's very well," he said hurriedly, "and so am I. Remember we'll be home tomorrow. Goodbye."

He hung up the receiver, and turned to me with a smile.

"You surely have our young son hypnotized," he said. "He has one theme song: 'When is my mother coming home?'"

I knew he was speaking the truth, and there was a little glow around my heart at the thought of my boy's affection for me. But I also knew that he was just now stressing Junior's desire that I come home because he wished to camouflage some insistent inquiry of my little lad.

In my last morning's telephone, however, Junior evidently had been rehearsed in what he was to say to me, for he confined his remarks to inquiries as to the way I was feeling and the demand to be assured that I would be home not later than three o'clock in the afternoon.

I gave him the required promise with the anticipatory little thrill which every mother has at the prospect of seeing a beloved child after an absence, no matter how short, and my last day at the beach was divided between reluctance to leave the place where I had enjoyed so wonderful a rest, and eagerness to see my boy. I admitted to myself a bit shamefacedly, that there was also in my mind a distinct curiosity concerning the secret which Junior was having so much trouble to keep.

We had a last gallop over the winding road, a last plunge into the surf, a last lazy lounge upon the sand dunes, while Dicky read to me. As the first luncheon bell sounded, giving the hotel guests a half-hour for dressing, Dicky drew me to my feet, and, secure in the shelter of the dunes, put his arms around me, and kissed me with lingering tenderness.

"Blessings on the play!" he intoned. "If you hadn't been so near exhaustion over the blasted thing, we'd never have thought of this stunt of coming out here for this week-end. I don't know about you, but I've had the most wonderful time in years."

I put my hands on either side of his face and looked at him steadily.

"Don't you know about me?" I asked. "If you don't, can't you guess?"

His arms tightened around me as his lips clung to mine and "we trod the stars" in one of those rare moments sometimes granted to earthly lovers.

"Till the next time!" he whispered, and upon this promise, which, indeed he had voiced before, that this idyllic interlude of happiness should be repeated as often as we could manage it, we descended to the realities of life with a very good seafood luncheon at the hotel and then motored leisurely back to the farmhouse.

Dicky had telephoned just before we started, a proceeding which surprised me, for he always objects to letting anyone know the exact time of his departures or his arrivals—and when, as our car slowed down for our entrance to the farmyard, we saw Junior and Roderick dancing up and down by the gate of the motor entrance. I knew that Dicky had meant to have them at the gate in greeting of me.

"Dicky!" I exclaimed in a panic for the thoughts of the menacing Chinese were ever with me, "the boys are out there alone!"

"No they're not," Dicky said reassuringly, as he turned the car for the gate. "See Hank and Bill are right behind them, only inside the hedge. And cast your eye over the landscape! You'll see the whole family lined up."

I followed his eyes and saw that he had spoken the truth. Every member of the family, even Baby Faith, in her carriage, was either on the veranda or descending from it, and all of the faces were beaming. Dicky stopped the car at the front door, something he rarely does, and Junior and Roderick were upon me as he helped me down from my seat!

"Hurry, Moms! do hurry!" Junior exclaimed. "Come out to the orchard with us."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Autographing a Photograph

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am sending my photograph as a birthday gift, and I would like to know the proper way to autograph it. FIANCEE.

I suppose that if you have set your heart on autographing the photograph, you won't agree with me when I suggest that often times if one doesn't write an autograph on a photograph the photograph is even more personal than if one did write a message on it. This may sound absurd, but figure it out a bit and you will see what I mean. Certainly when you are presenting your photograph to your fiance you don't want to make the message as personal a one as would seem called for and on the other hand you do not want to write an impersonal message. Then why isn't it better not to write anything on the photograph and let your fiance read into it the message that he wishes to read?

If you don't agree with this, my next suggestion is the simple and important—writing of only the names. "To Tom from Betty." Into the names the receiver reads "the" message.

The Telephone Call

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct for a guest who is spending the evening in a home to leave a nickel when she makes a call? SALLY.

No, we wouldn't do this. Ask, of course, first, if you may use the telephone, and after you have used it, thank your hostess for it, but don't even attempt to pay for the call unless it is a considerable long-distance one. Take this courtesy as part of the hospitality, but don't omit the special thanks for the courtesy.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Pneumonia Most Prevalent During Winter Months

Pneumonia is one of the most fatal of diseases. Although cases may occur at any time of the year, by far the largest number are found in the months of December, January, February and March. Then it is not so much the cold of winter as it is the sudden changes of temperature that serve as causative factors.

Dr. Copeland

Anything that lowers vitality, such as undue fatigue, anxiety, intemperance, poor sanitary surroundings or overcrowding, renders the individual susceptible to the infection. As a matter of fact, these are the underlying causes of many forms of human misery.

Pneumonia, known sometimes as "inflammation of the lungs," is due to infection by a germ known as the "pneumococcus." That is a big name, but it is no bigger than the trouble it causes.

The disease is commonly ushered in by a chill and fever. When the trouble is located in the lower part of the lung, there is usually pain in the region of the nipple of the affected side. The pain is severe, of a stabbing character, and is made worse by deep breathing or by coughing. The cough is always distressing, short and painful. The expectoration for the first few days is largely of mucus, but later it becomes tinged with blood.

Pneumonia is a self-limiting disease, running a pretty definite course. It usually terminates in a "crisis" on the fifth or seventh day. In some cases the crisis is delayed until the fourteenth or even the twenty-first day.

The symptoms of crisis are a sudden fall of temperature and profuse perspiration. At this particular time, the turning point of the illness, there may be failure of the heart, and the utmost care must be exercised to prevent a collapse.

After the crisis, in favorable cases, the patient becomes slowly but progressively better. At the end of a few weeks he is restored to health.

In the lung itself there is at first a congestion in the parts affected; then an effusion of blood renders the involved area of the lung solid and incapable of doing its work. After the disease has run its course the blood is gradually absorbed, and the lung is once more able to function normally.

During an attack of pneumonia, nursing is of the utmost importance. The patient must be watched closely for any sign of heart failure or exhaustion. Light, sustaining food must be given at regular intervals. This is necessary to keep up the strength of the patient, and no exertion must be permitted on his part.

Pleurisy is a complication frequently encountered. There may be a collection of pus in the pleural cavity—the space between the lungs and the lining of the ribs. This is not uncommon, and it foretells that recovery will be very slow.

The medical treatment of pneumonia is dependent upon the symptoms of the individual case. Sometimes a serum has been used with favorable results, but in other cases this treatment is of no avail.

Plenty of fresh air in the sick room is absolutely essential. To close the windows and keep out the air is a mistake.

Pneumonia is mildly infectious. The nurse and members of the family should see that the patient's sputum is destroyed. The clothes or gauze used as handkerchiefs are burned.

Household Hints

A solution of salts of lemon applied with a camel-hair brush will often remove marking ink from linen.

If a custard curdles in cooking you have only to place the saucepan over cold water and beat it with an egg-beater till smooth.

If there is any dampness in the cupboard in which preserves are to be stored, place a jar of lime under the shelves. This will absorb dampness.

HUNDREDS SEEK FREE AIR TRIP TO DETROIT

Detroit and Return Flight To Be Contest Award; Winner to See Air Show

Some fortunate boy will win a free airplane trip to Detroit and return, which is being offered by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with the National Aircraft Exposition and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, for correct answers to the 24 questions on air mail travel which are appearing in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph two each day. The winner will visit the National Aircraft Exposition which opens in Detroit April 2 and will have a round trip of approximately 600 miles.

Hundreds of boys from 15 to 20 years of age in the Pittsburgh district have become air-minded since the first announcement of this unique test.

ESCORT OF EXPERTS

The winner will not only get a free trip to Detroit and return, but will be personally conducted through the exposition and have all the latest types of airplanes—transport, racing pursuit, training and the newest and latest gadgets explained to him by experts.

While in Detroit the air-minded youngster will be taken on a 60-mile airplane tour from the Detroit City Airport stopping at the Ford, Wayne County, Grosse Ile and Walker airports en route. Then an automobile tour of the city stopping at the Ford automobile plant.

The two questions for today are as follows:

19. How many cities in the country are not linked by air?

20. How many foreign countries and colonies (do not include U. S. Territories) are served by American-owned and operated air mail and transport lines?

In addition to answering the 24 questions the last two of which will appear Thursday, the candidates are to write a letter of 100 words telling from their observations the advantages of air mail and air travel.

FLYING SCHEDULE

The boy who wins the Detroit airplane trip will follow this schedule:

GOING

Penna. Airways Air Lines No. 1 ... Leave Pittsburgh Tuesday, April 5, 11:59 a. m. ... Arrive Cleveland Tuesday, April 5, 12:50 p. m.

Century Air Lines No. 2 ... Leave Cleveland Tuesday, April 5, 1:20 p. m. ... Arrive Detroit Tuesday, April 5, 2:45 p. m.

RETURNING

Century Air Lines No. 4 ... Leave Detroit Friday, April 8, 1:30 p. m. ... Arrive Cleveland Friday, April 8, 2:55 p. m.

Pennsylvania Air Lines No. 6 ... Leave Cleveland Friday, April 8, 3:30 p. m. ... Arrive Pittsburgh Friday, April 8, 4:45 p. m.

The sets of answers and the letter must be in the office of the Aviation Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, before midnight March 23. They will be examined by a board of three judges and in case of ties, a duplicate award will be made.

SUBWAY STUDY JOBS UPHELD

Mayor Charles H. Kline today was expected to sign legislation passed by Council restoring certain employes of the City Transit Bureau removed in January as an economy move. The bureau is in charge of subway research work.

Walters S. Haydock designing engineer for the bureau, whose $10,000 job was eliminated, will return to duty at half that figure, while draftsmen and clerks will be retired.

The legislation appropriated $8,300 for the bureau, all of which will be taken from a $6,000,000 bond issue voted in 1919 by the people for underground rapid transit construction.

Plan Strike in War On N. Y. Racketeers

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—More than 10,000 members of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers Union of New York will walk out this week in protest against gang terrorization, which, it is charged, has become so rampant many legitimate businesses are threatened with destruction.

The workers charge that organized racketeers have levied "protection" tribute on about 100 millinery plants in New York.

Methodist Women Fight for Equality

ATLANTA, March 15.—(AP.)—Southern Methodist women will carry on their long fight to gain equal standing with men in their church. This was promised in the report of the committee on status of women to the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, meeting here in annual session.

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young. To do this you must watch your liver and bowels. There's no need of having a sallow complexion, dark rings under your eyes, pimples or blotches. Look in your mirror, and if eyes with no sparkle, tongue will tell you nearly 90 per cent of all sickness comes from the liver, bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in this city, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to activate the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about normal functions which all should enjoy. Nothing so fine for liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

To prevent self-infection and infecting others . . . use
KLEENEX
Disposable Tissues

THINK what your handkerchief really is doing a cold, germ or flu. A breeding place for germs. Millions of dangerous organisms remain in the tiny wash-cloth. How can you think of using it over and over and putting it in your pocket—having it washed? It is to be destroyed—

Kleenex is disposable

Kleenex is the answer to the health problem. Soft, disposable tissues that cost so little you can destroy them—that ease, indeed, so little you need for each tissue only once! That you avoid all danger of infection. And you enjoy the comfort of a new, dry soft handkerchief every time.

Insist that every member of the family use Kleenex. Send a package to school with the children. See that every office worker has a package for his desk.

A great convenience

Keep Kleenex tissues handy for applying medicines and ointments, for manicuring, for removing face creams, for applying make-up, for wiping razor blades. Kleenex is sold at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

$2000 contest makes men wonder why they haven't always smoked Dutch Masters

THE popular game of the day is to see how many words you can make out of D-u-t-c-h M-a-s-t-e-r-s. Naturally, this $2000 contest has suggested to men the idea of smoking one of these famous cigars.

Then they're "lost" forever. Back they come for more Dutch Masters; and they find them always in the same perfect, fresh condition, always mild, always fragrant, always satisfying.

Try just one Dutch Masters—one will convince you. Then you say how else you can have such rich pleasure for ten cents.

How many in your family are in the contest?

CONTEST RULES

Prizes will be given for the greatest number of words made out of the letters in Dutch Masters. No word must contain a letter more times than it appears in Dutch Masters.

Use only standard English words; no proper names.

List your words on paper under each letter (the D's together, the U's, etc.). Write only on one side of paper.

Mail your words with five Dutch Masters cigar bands, or reasonable facsimiles in colors, to Contest Department, Consolidated Cigar Corporation, 730 Fifth Avenue, New York, the judges of the contest.

Envelopes must be postmarked before midnight, April 11, 1932.

If two or more contestants are tied for a prize, the award will be made to the greatest entry.

The Four Horsemen are riding forth today on their first quarterly, happy mission of 1932. For it is March 15—HEARST CONSOLIDATED PUBLICATIONS, INC., DIVIDEND DAY.

These four trusty Messengers are symbolic of
1. SECURITY of principal
2. PROTECTION of dividends
3. CONTENTMENT of liberal income
4. WISDOM of investment.

They wing their way into the homes of over 31,000 Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., shareholders throughout the United States, Canada, England, Scotland, France, Germany, Switzerland, Egypt, China, Philippine Islands, Hawaii, Alaska, Mexico, Canal Zone, Newfoundland, Porto Rico and Virgin Islands.

Promptly and regularly, notwithstanding one of the most adverse periods in economic history, the legion of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., shareholders receives its 7% dividend checks—at the rate of 7% per annum—every three months.

While less fortunate friends and neighbors, who have invested in usually prosperous enterprises, complain of dividends being reduced or omitted, these Hearst shareholders are spreading the good news of their secure 7% income, distributed out of a steady flow of earnings from twelve of the most profitable Hearst publishing properties.

The result is that, during a time when investors have grown cautious, more than 31,000 persons have become shareholders in the $129,000,000 Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., and the number is continuing to grow. People in all stations of life—many of whom avoid the stock market—are taking advantage of HEARST INVESTMENT PROTECTION and are steadily increasing their holdings.

This investment appeals to persons with funds who desire an undisturbed income in these uncertain times. It is also attractive to those who seek to invest out of their salaries and monthly savings. To this group the Hearst partial payment thrift plan is a welcome feature. Hearst 7% Class "A" Preferred may be acquired by paying as little as $5.00 a share down and $2.00 a share monthly. All installments earn 7% from the day received.

LISTENING IN—With the Radio Editor

Florenz Ziegfeld and the "Follies" take to the air in a new series of Sunday night programs starting April 3.

Considered the most successful and colorful impresario on the American stage, Ziegfeld has produced 23 editions of the "Follies," in addition to such outstanding successes as "Whoopee," "Kid Boots," "Sally," "Show Boat" and the current Broadway sensation, "Hot-Cha." For a time he was in the motion picture field. Now he is turning to radio, the latest form of entertainment, to lead before the microphone an array of stars of past and present Ziegfeld productions. In addition to introducing his featured artists, the great glorifier of the American girl will arrange, rehearse and direct each program, introducing many innovations to test his showmanship as a broadcaster. Ziegfeld is enthusiastic at his new venture, to be carried on 70 stations of the Columbia system. He explains:

Mr. Ziegfeld

"With the new program as a laboratory, it may be possible for me to discover new ways of projecting personalities through the air waves. I believe that radio has much to learn from the stage and that, in turn, the stage may profit from radio. And it is heartening to know that for the first time, the 'Follies,' hitherto confined to the larger cities, will now come to the living rooms of every community throughout the country."

Eamon de Valera, American-born president-elect of the Irish Republic, will be heard in Pittsburgh in an international broadcast from Dublin as a feature of the St. Patrick's Day programs on Thursday. His address will be on WJAS at 12:15 p. m.

Program Pointers

The Little German Band pays tribute to the Irish with Celtic music on KDKA at 6:15 tonight.

Walter Winchell brings Ted Weems' Orchestra from Milwaukee and Bert Lown's music from St. Paul on WCAE tonight at 10.

Ben Bernie and Kate Smith exchange compliments on WJAS tonight. Kate sings Ben's theme song, "Lonesome Old Town" at 8:30 and Ben plays "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain" at 9. In addition, they introduce each other as "guests" on their respective programs.

The quartet of the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, composed of Charlotte Shallenberger, soprano; Anna Mae Miller, contralto; Edward Dunbar, tenor, and James Pastorius, bass, presents KDKA's Sacred Songs concert on KDKA at 8.

Harry Richman, who has just completed his Ziegfeld Follies engagement, is Ed Sullivan's guest on WJAS at 8:45.

"The Market Place," on WCAE at 9:30 a. m. every week-day, presents the latest comments on other lands at other times. The WCAE artists previously heard on the Noon Novelties add Incidental music. Alice Abbott, the speaker, writes the script from personal experiences, which include service as an entertainer for the A. E. F.

Highlights on the life of the great French scientist, Michael Idvorsky Pupin, are given by Frazier Hunt on KDKA at 9:30.

Music by Victor Saudek's Salon Trio from McCreery's dining room is a new daily feature on WWSW from 1 to 1:30.

Norman Brokenshire was a "surprise" feature with the Boswell Sisters last night. He remains with that new spring series of "music that satisfies" on WJAS to introduce Alex Gray tonight at 10:30 and Ruth Etting tomorrow night.

Incidentally, the program in which Brokenshire appears as the "society playboy" with Nat Brusiloff and Welcome Lewis has changed its time on the air and is on WJAS tomorrow night at 10:30 instead of tonight at 10:15, as originally scheduled.

Frances Bowdon, the wide-eyed little girl from the Ozarks, who tells NBC listeners what she thinks about the sights of New York, has seen her first wrestling match in Madison Square Garden—"one terrible big place to whitewash." She wanted to know why the wrestlers shook hands "when they're supposed to be fightin' mad," and then described the bout.

"Well, after they shook hands, they went back to sit down and rest some more, and then an alarm clock rang and the two fellers went out and laid down to take a nap. They didn't rest very long, 'cause pretty soon one of them decided he wanted to get up and the other one didn't seem to want him to and they had quite a little trouble about that. One of them was plenty mad at the other for disturbin' his rest."

Fan Fare

Ray Schneider, who conducts "Bits of Science" on WWSW Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 6 p. m., visited all the newspaper plants for his new series this week. "The Making of a Newspaper."

That soap company which sponsors Sisters of the Skillet and Col. Stoopnagle and Budd has signed up two more headliners, B. A. Rolfe's new orchestra and the Mills Brothers. Rolfe, with 35 men, starts on an NBC network April 7. The Mills Brothers, whose present contract is coming to an end, remain on CBS with their new program starting April 12.

The Life of Christ will be portrayed in Negro spirituals in a Good Friday broadcast on an NBC network. It will be in 15 episodes, by the 15 Dixie Jubilee Singers.

Smith Chairmanship May Be Widened

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

Ralph H. Smith, originally selected as Allegheny County chairman for the Independent slate comprising Gen. Smedley Butler for the United States Senate, Ralph Flinn for Auditor General, and Judge Joseph Stadtfeld for the Superior Court, may have his jurisdiction widened to embrace all of Western Pennsylvania in the primary campaign culminating April 26.

The tentative decision to widen Smith's scope was made yesterday in Harrisburg at a conference which included Gov. Pinchot, Flinn, Edgar J. Kaufmann, Smith and a number of other persons interested in the Independent campaign.

The only bar to final ratification of the decision is selecting a successor to Smith as chairman for Allegheny County.

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell was asked to take the place, but is reported to have declined. Mackrell was on the Independent as well as regular tickets in the county primary last year, and in the general election supported County Commissioner William D. Mansfield, regular Republican nominee, and Commissioner C. M. Barr, a Republican running on a number of Independent tickets.

Mackrell has been identified with organization politics in past campaigns, but has a record for independent action. While he has not commented on the proffer of the chairmanship of this campaign, it should have been recognized that past friendly relations with some Philadelphia leaders, together with his attachment to former Lieut. Gov. Arthur James, slated for the Superior Court by the organization when it rejected Judge Stadtfeld, could not be accepted.

* * *

Mackrell Earnestly Supporting Stadtfeld

Mackrell is and has been earnestly supporting Judge Stadtfeld, but he would have been in an embarrassing position if brought to a point where he would have had to oppose James. If the Independents who attempted to persuade Mackrell to become their chairman had been aware of these associations, dating to and beyond the historic campaign of 1926, they would have realized the futility of their suggestion. An acceptance would have compelled Mackrell to break old loyalties, a habit he has not formed.

As it is, Mackrell is free to support both James and Stadtfeld if he wishes, there being three places on the Superior Court to fill. As a chairman he could not, as it is figured that eventually the Pinchot-Independent ticket will include with Stadtfeld for the Superior Court Judges Robert Gawthrop and William M. Parker, leaving James out.

Smith is understood to have made an extremely favorable impression on the Independent leaders. He was particularly acceptable to friends of Judge Stadtfeld, who hope for an intensive campaign in Western Pennsylvania in his behalf.

Yesterday, the last day for withdrawal of nominating petitions, left the Independents and Regulars both with some snarls in various districts. There were some withdrawals, but nowhere were they sufficient to clear the confused political atmosphere of clashing ambitions. This is particularly true with respect to the Independents.

Confusion Marking Legislative Fights

A case in point is the Forty-third Senatorial District, where Senator James J. Coyne, organization leader, is seeking re-election. Against him are Edwin J. Wuerthle and John Benning, all seeking a Republican nomination. Wuerthle is known to have the encouragement of County Commissioner Barr. Benning, active in the Independent battle last fall, is looked upon as a protege of McGovern.

There is similar confusion in legislative fights as well as contests for the Republican State Committee, though McGovern, even before he was injured, insisted he would keep aloof from legislative controversies.

The Twelfth Legislative District is a prime illustration of confusion. There are approximately two score candidates for the lower house. Independents there have picked four, a selective accomplishment which has not pleased the ignored candidates and their friends.

It is not too late to bring about withdrawals, of course, though candidates who did not quit yesterday are still in the race, so far as the State Bureau of Elections knows officially. Those who withdraw from now on can do so in public statements, and there probably will be a number adopting that course.

In the Thirtieth Congressional District the Independent Democrats have substituted Christian Ihmsen of the Twentieth Ward for Alfred B. Pontello as a candidate for delegate to the national convention. The Independents are seeking uninstructed delegates while the county organization wishes instructions for Gov. Roosevelt, of New York. Ihmsen's running mate is John B. Meyers, of Indiana Township.

Pitt Monkey Busy Writing About Winter

Pencils Not Tasty, Pet Finds Marking Paper Pastime

Jimmie, the pet monkey in Dr. S. H. Williams' zoology department office at the University of Pittsburgh, has taken to writing his dissertations on Pittsburgh weather since the present cold snap came to town. And as he writes, frantically erasing his markings as he goes along, his chattering might mean:

"Oh, why would any sensible monkey leave the southland for this?"

Jimmie has been the students' favorite pet for the past two years. At first he thought pencils were something to eat, but recently has been discovered busy at work marking up every sheet of paper he can find in Dr. Williams' office.

Treasurer's Office Damaged by Fire

City employes today were repairing damage estimated at $100 caused by fire yesterday in the City Treasurer's office. The flames, discovered by cleaners after the office had closed, were caused, according to firemen, by a lighted cigaret dropped into a wastebasket in a women's rest room. Walls were damaged and furniture burned. The flames were extinguished within a few minutes with chemicals.

Slight Hope Held For Attack Victim

Little hope was held today for the recovery of William Lane, 46, of Spring street, Camp Hill, near Carnegie, who since Sunday has failed to regain consciousness in the Mercy Hospital. He was found in Sixth street, Carnegie, apparently beaten unconscious.

AUDIT EXPOSE SPURS FIGHT FOR REMEDY

Bill to Battle Tag-Fixing Buried in Council; Peril Of Payroll Padding Bared

The exposure in detail of the irregularities of the present traffic tag system by the audit of the City Treasury has focused attention on the passage of the codified traffic ordinance which offers a remedy for tag-fixing.

Councilman P. J. McArdle and W. Y. English declared in favor of immediate action on the ordinance. Other members reserved opinion pending a study of the audit.

Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee, said the committee stands united for the codified ordinance. He said:

"We are going in and make another plea for it. We feel that now is the opportune time."

The ordinance has been shelved in Councilmanic Committee.

Many of the suggestions made in the auditor's report have already been followed, Controller James P. Kerr declared. Some of the suggestions cannot be accepted, he said, without legislation to make them possible.

More complete control of collection of city revenue is being sought. Dr. Kerr said the auditors' reports stated that in many departments the check on the city's money is inadequate.

The suggestion of eliminating the department of the Delinquent Tax collector and making it a division of the Treasurer's office would require an act of the State Assembly, Dr. Kerr said.

OHIO TO RETURN SUSPECTS HERE

Extradition papers were signed today in Columbus, O., by Gov. George White, clearing the way to bring three suspects here for a hearing on charges of having held up the Metro Club, Squirrel Hill, according to Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd.

The three men, Donald M. Joyce, Ray Marino and Fred Bowser, were identified by seven of the victims in Youngstown, O., following their arrest there, according to City Detectives Thomas Morgan and Walter Monaghan, in charge of the investigation.

Detectives said that the Metro Club holdup, February 14, when $1,100 loot was taken, was one of several robberies in which the three were believed implicated. Five men took part in the Metro Club robbery, detectives said, but no trace of the other two could be found.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

It was gratifying to read in the papers that Germany "went sane" in the election Sunday. Hindenburg is assured of re-election April 10. He must be a grand old character, the only man that the whole of Europe produced that they followed in war and followed in peace. Hitler had some swell sounding ideas; but this depression has lasted so long that it has given the people a chance in all countries to know that nobody can fix it overnight with an idea. Nobody knows exactly where it came from, and nobody knows exactly where or when it's going from here. Hindenburg had no solution and was re-elected. So why don't everybody do like him and quit lying about it.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

Theater Musicians' Battle Continues in Court

Whether David Broudy, director of the Stanley Theater orchestra, landed a punch on the face of a departing orchestra player that caused him to see double when he looked at his notes and impaired his playing on the French horn because of "soft lips," is being decided in Common Pleas Court.

Julius Gardner, of Lakewood, O., complained that Broudy struck him "a terrible blow" during an argument about a benefit performance October 16, 1929, when Gardner said he was dismissed.

Gardner, suing for damages, said he lost 25 weeks' work through the injury.

This Is the Day To Give Whether It Hurts or Not

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

March fifteenth is the ingrown toe-nail of the calendar.

For it's the day when the hoarders lay their plunder on the line and they can't say it with flowers.

You have until midnight tonight and no reprieves from the Governor.

So give up with a smile, boys, because a laugh would sound sarcastic.

Only day before yesterday the French public cheered Von Hindenburg. Which proves that styles change in everything, even Eugenie bonnets.

And if the French can whoop it up for Hindy, there's no reason why we can't give three cheers for the present form of government. That will change too, on November fourth.

Change Not Required This Year If Old Suits Are Usable

Pittsburgh's "finest" will have new natty police uniforms this summer. That is, some of them will have new uniforms, because Assistant Supt. of Police Ben Marshall told them yesterday the officials did not intend to work any hardships on the men this year, that they could wear their last-summer suits, if at all presentable.

The transition from the old-style suits to the new form-fitting whipcord outfits with turn-down collars and blue shirt and tie will be made over a two-year period, Marshall said.

Ice Makers Here Go to Convention

Pittsburgh leaders in the ice manufacturing business will be heard on the convention program of the Pennsylvania Ice Producers' Association, which opens tomorrow in Philadelphia. Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, will respond to the address of welcome. Other Pittsburghers to be heard include Frank L. Duggan, Andrew B. Hare and Senator James J. Davis.

AUDIT REVEALS CITY DEBTOR TO COUNTY

Tax Collector, Who Killed Self, Charged With $3,500 Shortage; Taxes Made Up

Main & Co. today submitted three audit reports of their investigation into Allegheny County affairs, disclosing:

1—That the city of Pittsburgh and borough of Turtle Creek owe Allegheny County $56,275 as their share of joint public improvements completed last year, for which they have not even received a bill.

2—That the accounts of L. R. Machling, Wilkinsburg deputy delinquent tax collector who killed himself about a month ago, apparently were short approximately $3,500.

3—That while many other deputy collectors had been tardy in making returns of collections, they finally have made complete and satisfactory accountings.

According to the one report, Turtle Creek owes the county $5,775 for a joint paving project which was completed August 15.

CITY DEBTS LISTED

The City of Pittsburgh owes $17,500 as its share in the relocation of street car tracks in California avenue, a project completed on June 1; $25,000 for the relining of California avenue from Superior avenue to the eastern end of the McKees Rocks Bridge traffic circle, and $8,000 for the repaving of street railway areas on the same project. The Superior avenue job was completed July 28.

The report informed the Commissioners that the county engineering division had been informed of the situation and was preparing invoices against the city and borough which would be submitted to the Commissioners for approval.

The other reports both touched on delinquent tax collection and being supplemental to previous reports on the same subject.

One was of the auditors' investigation of accounts of deputy tax collections in McKees Rocks, Braddock, Homestead, Baldwin Township, Bethel Township, Harrison Township, Elizabeth, Tarentum, Turtle Creek, Coraopolis, Sewickley, Wilkinsburg, Rankin, Wall, North Barrdock, Mt. Lebanon and Snowden Township.

ACCOUNTS ADJUSTED

It said that all of the collectors' accounts were in satisfactory condition except those of Mechling, M. R. Baldwin, of Coraopolis; E. M. Allen, of Turtle Creek; Michael Friel, of Harris Township, and Arthur C. Drumm, of Mt. Lebanon Township.

The audit said that collections amounting to $3,744.87 had been disclosed in Mechling's book for which no payment had been made to the delinquent tax collector. His collector's bank account showed a balance of only $268.44, it continued.

The records of Baldwin, Allen and Friel, the audit set forth, all showed irregularities and nonpayments.

The third report was devoted entirely to the activies of Drumm.

It revealed that while Drumm's reports of certain collections were often tardy, he had made a complete and final accounting of all his due collections.

THOUSANDS NOW BEING AIDED MAY SUFFER

Harris Plan Believed to Be Only Means of Meeting Crisis; Wait Public Aid

The Welfare Fund does not have enough cash to meet the requirements for March and unless additional funds can be provided immediately, thousands of families now receiving relief will suffer, according to a report made today by the finance committee of the fund.

The month was entered with a cash balance of $446,835 in the Welfare Fund. Payments on pledges due in March total $542,949, so if these payments are realized in full there will be only $989,784 to meet requirements for the month of $1,028,880. This is a shortage of $39,096 under the most favorable conditions.

CASH ADVANCED

The Welfare Fund has been advancing money to the Allegheny County Emergency Association for its program, but the Emergency Association will enter April with only $57,689 of its $2,500,000 budget remaining.

To meet the cash shortage, it is believed the finance committee will appeal to large individual subscribers to make advance payments, or will seek to borrow in anticipation of collections. Available funds cannot be stretched to meet the needs of the year, however, Welfare leaders declare.

Although $5,447,966 was raised in the campaign last fall, a large percentage was in pledges payable over a period of six months or more. Up until February 29, the fund had collected only $2,928,466, and of this amount, $2,478,631 had been allotted to the various agencies and advanced to the Emergency Association.

SKATERS SAVE 3 CHILDREN

Three children who plunged into the frigid waters of Lake Elizabeth last night when the ice broke were rescued by skaters, according to North Side police.

They are Olive Lorentz, 9, and her brother, Amor, 5, of 1819 Buena Vista street, and Genevieve Thompson, 10, of 1402 Sandusky street.

The Lorentz children were en route to the Presbyterian Hospital, where Amor was to have his finger dressed. Lost, they wandered over the section of lake not roped off for skaters.

The screams of the children as the ice gave way under them attracted other skaters, who pulled them from the icy water. They were taken to the shelter house and then taken home by a police radio car. They were not injured.

COUNCIL ACTS

Legislation consenting to the placing on the ballot bond issues totaling $5,000,000 for relief was passed yesterday by City Council. The ordinance was signed by Mayor Kline today. A lone dissenting vote was cast by Councilman P. J. McArdle.

McArdle declared the small taxpayer is being saddled with the burden. He predicted more legislation of the same type will come. Council's action was taken over the protests of the Retail Merchants Association and the Carpenters' District Council.

McArdle's negative vote made the possibility of Council passing the $500,000 emergency appropriation remote, even should Mayor Charles H. Kline declare an emergency. The Mayor declared yesterday as yet no emergency exists.

MOONEY RULING DELAY SEEN

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15 — (Universal) — Delay until after April 1 of Gov. Rolph's decision on the pardon application of Thomas J. Mooney was indicated today.

Because of an attack of influenza, with which he has been laid up for three weeks, the Governor's chief legal adviser, Matt I. Sullivan, former chief justice of the State Supreme Court, said he would be unable to make his recommendations on the Mooney case for two weeks at least.

Mooney is serving a life term in San Quentin Prison for complicity with Warren K. Billings, also a lifer, in the 1916 San Francisco preparedness day bomb outrage.

Mooney's pardon appeal was argued in person before Gov. Rolph on December 1 by Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

BIND 38 IN BANK, 9 WOMEN HELD BUT LOSE LOOT

CLINTON, Ia., March 15 — (AP) — One hundred thousand dollars stolen from the City National Bank today by five robbers who bound 38 employes and customers, was recovered on a farm three hours after the holdup by John and Arvid Flood, farmers.

The bandits are believed to have stopped at the farm, changed their clothes, thrown away their guns and left the money because of hot pursuit.

Sheriff E. R. Cooke later said he believed that four of the robbers had been captured in a woods near Shafton, a suburb.

The men met Clyde Willetts, janitor, when he opened a barred rear door to fire the furnace at 6:30 a. m. Willetts was set at work around the office to allay suspicion of passersby.

One of the gang stationed himself behind a front door and as each employe entered, he was ordered to hold up his hands. The employes were bound and held in a directors' room.

9 WOMEN HELD IN MINE STRIKE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., March 15 — (INS) — Determined to curb violence, police took a hand in the insurgent mine strike today and arrested 12 persons, nine of them women, who were marching upon a Pittston operation armed with baseball bats.

A report that dynamite had been stolen near Pittston was heard, but police and company officials refused to confirm the story.

Undismayed by the little success which marked their efforts yesterday, the anti-administration element pushed its strike program forward and today succeeded in shutting down 12 mines. A checkup revealed that at least a half dozen other operations were working shorthanded.

Conflicting reports of the situation were made by pickets and company and union officers, but it was estimated that more than 20,000 workers were idle. Approximately 60,000 mine workers were employed in the district.

Raymond Barry, 21, of 304 West street, Homestead, is willing to spend 11 years in prison if it will bring about the return of the missing Lindbergh baby. Revealing this, he said today:

"Nearly everybody in Homestead believes that Al Capone can get the baby back if he is released from prison.

"He offered to post a $200,-000 bond for his return if he is permitted to join in the search.

"I am willing to serve his 11 years in the penitentiary if he can find the child, going into the prison the day he starts the hunt.

Court was deposited in banks in the name of Magistrate William J. Soost was shown in the audit along with the recommendation that traffic fines should be deposited at once in the city treasury. The deposits amounted to $23,747 on October 10, 1931, and there was a fund of $800 in interest which had not been reported to the Treasurer, it was stated.

Soost, a member of Council since January 4, had no comment on the deposits other than that such a practice was permitted by law. The audit also disclosed that traffic fines totaling $3,500 were tied up in the closed Highland National Bank.

The audit, a 200-page volume covering the period from January to October, 1931, made scores of recommendations for improvement in bookkeeping methods.

Five concessions in the city parks were found to be operating without lease. Of these two were rented to M. DeRosa, the audit stated. DeRosa was in arrears to the extent of $416 on his 1931 rent according to the report.

SCORE CHECK DANGER

Only certified checks should be accepted by the City Treasurer in payment of taxes, the audit suggests. In the past N. S. F. checks have been taken, receipts issued and great difficulty met in collecting.

A bequest of $4,500 left to the city by the will of Sarah H. Crone for the Tuberculosis Hospital Leech Farm, may have been misapplied, the auditors found. The money left to provide comfort for women at the hospital, was used for building the superintendent's home, a motion picture machine and a radio.

Robbers entered the home of J. Herbert Hershberger, 58 North Emily street, Crafton, last night, and escaped with an overcoat and a gold watch, valued at $50, county detectives were informed. Entrance was gained through a rear window.

SHOW IMPERIAL RUSSIAN ART TREASURES

Articles Intimately Linked To Royalty Displayed At Kaufmann Gallery

By PENELOPE REDD

Swords have been changed into ploughshares but it remained for the Soviet Russians to turn the jewels of the few into food for the many. During the next fortnight those interested may see at the Kaufmann gallery some 3,000 or more objects which represent quite literally the residum of imperial Russia.

Again and again we have seen collections of Russian peasant handicrafts. Never before have objects so intimately associated with Russian royalty been shown. Many are the household treasures from the palace of the "Aunt Ella" of the Grand Duchess Marie's memoirs.

Penelope Redd

Oldest in point of time is the group of icons which date from the fifteenth century when Ivan III married the niece of Constantine Palaeologus, Emperor of Constantinople, and thus introduced Byzantine grandeur into art and in many other manifestations Ivan also elevated his authority from "Grand Prince of Muscovy" to "Tsar of All Russia."

DONE IN MANY STYLES

Icons, the most characteristic form of painting of the Russians, were rendered in some 300 styles and depict every religious personage and incident in the Greek Orthodox faith. Many of the schools are represented. The earlier ones with their unabashed fervor render Italian primitive paintings of a comparable type somewhat pallid.

Turning to profane objects, one may take a division such as the porcelain and trace the glory of the Romanoff dynasty. From the time they stabilized the family position as the reigning princes of Russia in the period extending from the first Michael (1613-1645) to the reign of Peter the Great (1689-1725), who developed his Oriental tsardom into a world power as the empire of Russia, there was little accumulation of art treasures consciously acquired.

However, Peter the Great in building his city Petrograd, as "a window through which his people might look into Europe," gave them the background for a decorative arts development that startles by its magnificence.

ROYAL FACTORY FOUNDED

His daughter, Elizabeth (1741-1761), the fourth ruler within 15 years after his death, eager to foster Russian culture, established a royal porcelain factory about 1750.

In the collection at Kaufmann's, porcelains from this factory for every successive reign including the brief, tragic one of Catherine the Great's son, Paul, are shown.

A citizen of Pittsburgh, who was an intimate within the circle of the late Russian Imperial family, said that at the state dinner in 1913, which culminated the celebration of the 300 years' reign of the Romanoffs, a service for 2,000 guests indicated the resources of the Russian treasures.

In the collection gathered by Dr. Armand Hammer and his brother, Victor, glass, silver, textiles, jewels and furnishings in unbelievable quantities testify to the lavish use of the decorative arts in the pageant of Imperial Russia.

VETS' HOSPITAL PLAN OPPOSED AT SESSION

Association Convening Here May Ask Government to Drop 300 Million Program

The federal government will be asked to abandon its $300,000,000 program of veteran hospital construction and send ill and injured patients to civilian hospitals, it was indicated today as delegates to the eleventh annual conference of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania assembled in William Penn Hotel.

H. E. Bishop, of Sayre, executive secretary of the association, said resolutions similar to those adopted recently by the American Hospital Association would be proposed for adoption by the Pennsylvania meeting. He pointed out that of the 30,677 hospital beds available for veterans in 1932 civilian hospitals in the United States 340 beds are available in 20 hospitals in the Pittsburgh district.

Mr. Sayre said:

"There is no reason that soldiers, suffering from non-service related illnesses or injuries, should not be hospitalized in a good hospital near his home without delay. Our civilian hospitals have, and offer, the facilities for the best of care for our sick and disabled soldiers at no greater cost to the government than it is paying at present."

More than 400 delegates are expected at the three-day meeting here. M. H. Eichenlaub, of West Penn Hospital, president of the association, presided at the opening session. The delegates were welcomed by Dr. W. H. Mayer, president of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania.

BEAVER, Pa., March 15.—Acting under orders of District Attorney A. B. Decastrique, Chief County Detective Robert H. Prison Camp Stories Now Are Popular With Film Makers

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.

Today the hue and cry in Hollywood is all about Paul Muni.

His stinging performance in "Scarface" has resold the movie moguls, and Mr. Muni will be coming out here again to play for Warners First National in "I Am a Fugitive from a Prison Camp."

As I write before the sight of [illegible] being [illegible] by the Hollywood [illegible] & Dollar [illegible] of new books [illegible] Paul Muni [illegible] Yes, followers of the cinema will remember that Paul Muni was added to the Fox [illegible] years ago and after the Vitaphone [illegible] and after other pictures of so was a need to return to New York.

Howard Hughes brought him out here and, as I understand it, has an option on his services for 60 days after the release of the picture. So it may be Warners made the deal through Hughes.

HERE'S GOSSIP

Ever since Greta Garbo visited the Mitchells' Los Gables there have been recurring stories that the heroine's suede would carry out her threats. This rumor has cropped up again [illegible] and refuses to be [illegible] Garbo [illegible] you know, has but one more picture to make at M G M after [illegible] As You Desire Me. The [illegible] say she will not [illegible] again but others [illegible] and the [illegible] gain more [illegible] she really will go back to Sweden this time and never appear on the screen again. Irene Dunne has Hollywood's most novel hobby. She is learning the Braille system of reading for the blind. Don't let this start a false rumor. There is nothing the matter with her eyes. She became interested in finger-reading while working with a number of blind children in "Symphony of Six Million." Since the picture ended, she has kept up her study. Frank Borzage and Spencer Tracy flew down to Cabanente over the week-end. Will Rogers will make a brief trip to San Francisco to see his son Will Jr., who is a freshman at Stanford University. Tom Mix would like to sell his five-acre estate in Beverly Hills. John Barrymore is back at work at F-B-O following his accident. He has discarded crutches and his limp is responding.

DRAMATIC TOUCH

Here's a bit of human drama. Some years ago Betty Compson landed in San Francisco broke and got a job as nurse-maid with a wealthy family in San Mateo.

Recently when Betty was on her personal appearance tour the same family gave a dinner in her honor. The little girl Betty took care of is now a debutante.

LILA COMES BACK

That belated comeback of Lila Lee is to be realized at last.

Lila has signed with Universal to play the feminine lead in "Ra[illegible] to Paris." This is the Tom Reed story I have written about before. Edward C. Cahn will direct the picture, which goes into immediate production.

Another interesting note: Tully Clyde, who is in the Radio Pictures cast, also will do a part in Back Streets.

A series of screen tests has landed one of the most coveted roles of the year for Gwili Andre, Danish beauty. She will play opposite Richard Dix in RKO-Radio's story of war-torn China, "The Road of the Dragon." Eisenstein's Genius in Cinema

By GEORGE SEIBEL

The people who are going to the German Cinema this week are going to see a film operetta "Sein Liebeslied" ("His Love Song") in the mood of "Two Hearts in Waltz Time."

But that operetta becomes a mere incident when a short film by the Russian S. M. Eisenstein is thrown upon the screen.

This Eisenstein is a genius—perhaps that's why he was recently refused admission to the United States.

His symphonic and symbolic screen interlude reminds you of Blake and Poe with its dalucinations, its oceans and tempests, its buds of spring, its vision of Rodin, its melancholy grandeurs.

You can't describe it—you must see it.

The operetta is a very amusing and pretty trifle—a boarding school miss in Munich loves the King of Jazz, whom she knows only by his records—and he turns out to be her father. But she has found her real love in his understudy. Cabaret, beer-garden and boarding-school scenes are full of foam and lingerie, while the ear is titillate by a fetching song, "You Are My Greta Garbo."

But the Eisenstein Russian rhapsody is the thing.

How to Escape FLU and Grippe

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first touch of sore throat, as this relieves the soreness and usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

End Play Problems.

End play problems show the cards held about the table after a number of earlier tricks have been taken. The reader is given the declaration being played, which player is to lead, and how many tricks must be won by a specified side against any possible opposing play, for the correct solution of the problem. All cards must be played face upwards upon the table so that each player knows precisely what is held by each of the three remaining players. These problem hands not only are of absorbing interest to earnest students, but also the mastery of the different situations that [illegible] greatly to improve the play of the solver.

During the many years that some species of bridge has been played practically every possible end situation has been presented, with the rule for recognizing it when encountered. A few of the older players won fame through their presentations of such helpful problem hands. [illegible] To solve such problems have to a large extent to be satisfied with presenting duplicate situations which they have actually encountered in dealt hands, or by disguising the work of the earlier masters of this art by means of altered suits and the specific cards shown in the problems.

DEAL PUTS BROOKLYN IN FLAG FIGHT

BASEBALL TRADES ARE [illegible]
It takes [illegible] to [illegible]

Babe Herman

Cincinnati [illegible] to furnish [illegible] the Reds [illegible] satisfy the [illegible] pay Babe the money [illegible] Brooklyn cannot.

BUT [illegible] Cares [illegible] one [illegible] pluggy [illegible] and he [illegible]

His color and advertising notwithstanding, Herman is a greatly overrated ball player. His only value is in his hitting, and a drop from .381 to .313 last year would indicate that he had been belted a lot by the brave ball in earlier seasons. At best he never was feared by wise pitchers in the matches, as seemingly they do not find it difficult to outsmart him. Babe improved in his fielding last year, but still is far from being a star in that department, and his baserunning has always been pretty much of a joke. With Hack Wilson for the vacant outfield post Brooklyn should not miss Herman in the least. Gilbert only a .266 hitter, rarely stood out in Dodger activities, and Lombardi is too slow to be valuable. He is nowhere near Sukeforth's class as a catcher.

IN EXCHANGE FOR [illegible] editions. Carey gets one of the best [illegible] hitter in Stripp, another performer of high class in Cuccinello, who batted .315 and a very capable catcher in Sukeforth, to pair with Lopez behind the bat, provided Sukeforth has recovered from the hunting injury suffered a few months ago.

Developments of the season may change the complexion of things, but right now it looks as if the deal favors the Dodgers and knocked out a powerful opponent [illegible] the Reds.

CAREY WAS FORTUNATE in that Leo Durocher, Stripp and Cuccinello developed to open the way for the deal. If the Red owners had been able to foresee that they were going to have so much trouble in signing the two infield aces they might have been more reasonable in the prices they placed on them last December, with the result that either Stripp or Cuccinello would now be a Pirate. For Carey wasn't the first to realize the value of the Red infielders. When President Renswanger and Manager Gibson were trying hard to swing a deal with Cincinnati three months ago, their efforts were directed toward getting Stripp or Cuccinello. They offered to pay any reasonable price for either of them, but had to give up in despair when the Cincinnati club demanded Paul Waner in exchange. It was not due to any lack of effort that the Bue cheefs did not land one of the pair.

Jim Bivin

BY NO MEANS [illegible] feature of the [illegible] has been the showing of some of the [illegible] pitchers. Several of them have demonstrated that, even though they may not be quite ready for major duty, they are filed [illegible] for the future.

Jim Bivin, righthander, clearly was benefited by his season at Wichita. He is showing a lot of promise. He owns a great fast ball and has a fair curve to go along with it, ramp observers being a unit in the belief that the recruit will improve his hender with work and experience. All around, Bivin is considered a very fine prospect.

ANOTHER [illegible] Jos-Gowan [illegible] fast ball, a good curve, a promising change of pace and is above the average in [illegible]. His weight of work he bids fair to become a very good man in a year or so.

Bill Swift is reported a natural not only the great fast ball for which he was to be [illegible] but also a fair curve and plenty of natural all-around ability. His fielding could stand some improvement, but in a general sense he is an excellent prospect and is tipped as certain to make a good pitcher with a little more experience.

TO A FLEET athlete at Carnegie Tech has gone one of the highest honors within the reach of a freshman architectural student. Bill Carlson, star quarterback of last fall's plebe football team, and equally brilliant as a forward on the yearling basketball outfit, which closed its season against the Penn State freshmen last Friday, is the fortunate youth. Carlson has won the first prize in architectural design, presented by the Alpha Rho Chi fraternity, an honorary art science society.

THE ACHIEVEMENT is the more remarkable when it is considered that Carlson has been in athletic competition only since last September, for one of the few Tartan athletes that have been able to shine in two sports.

The home of the successful student is in Jamestown, N. Y. He is considered an excellent prospect for both the varsity football and basketball teams next fall and winter, having shown uncommon promise on both gridiron and court.

CRITICIZING THE WORK of the Pittsburgh hockey club, A Canadian writes from Carleton to urge an immediate effort to acquire new players for next season. "The only men to play real hockey last Saturday night," he adds, were Righter, Arbour and that [illegible] for Boston at goal, who is a whole team in himself."

Consolidation plan [illegible] hockey success. Big league players from across the border can be obtained to provide what is needed.

Pete Barry

ONE OF THE most remarkable players that basketball has known in any period will be seen in the lineup of the Rosenblum Celtics when the Cleveland stars encounter the crack Renaissance Negro five, of New York, in the big pro game tonight at Motor Square Garden. He is Pete Barry, famous forward, who was playing basketball before the college stars of today were born, but who still ranks with the greatest. Barry is in a class of his own as a combination of durability and playing skill. Past 40, he is the oldest man now playing regularly. He has been on the pro courts almost a quarter of a century, is the only member of the original New York Celtics still active, and early in the present season played his three-thousandth game.

Charleroi [illegible] prevented a team last night [illegible] the largest crowd [illegible] a W. P. I. A. L. [illegible] It was the one that led [illegible] downfall of the Millionaires. Ray Lee found Walter Miller a [illegible] but this fact did not stop him from going places. He was here, there and everywhere breaking up passes, getting the jump and handling the ball in a flawless manner. Hugus took care of the major portion of the Charleroi scoring. This brilliant guard came through with five baskets, his double-decker in the extra session proving the winning margin although Big Joe added a foul to make the lead secure.

STEPPERS IN FORM

The Homestead quintet of last night hardly could be called the same floor machine that swept through the regular season with such finesse that it was rated a pre-tournament favorite. The Campbell combine apparently had too much trouble between its second round and quarter final duels. Fifteen days between games took a lot of edge off the Homestead team. Not even can keep his team at the peak of form with this stretch of inactivity and Bill Campbell is no exception. Charleroi had the advantage in that it met Swissvale in a tournament game only last Wednesday.

Homestead obtained the lead at the start and piled up three points before Charleroi counted on a foul. The Steppers however soon forged to the front and were leading 7-6 at the end of the period. They maintained their advantage in the second period and were leading 13-11 at the half. The end of the third period found them in front 18-17.

HOMESTEAD SPURTS

Homestead then spurted, a field goal by Stafura, one by Sidders and a foul by Miller giving the Campbell team a four-point advantage at 24-20. Hugus then put Charleroi back in the ball game with two rapid shots through the hoop to tie up the game.

The Charleroi victory was all the more deserving inasmuch as the Steppers did not appear to be getting their share of the "breaks" in officiating. In the final quarter an unnecessary technical foul was called on Robison, Miller shot the charity toss to give Homestead a 24-20 advantage. But a team that won't be licked can't be licked, and that's exactly what represented Charleroi on the floor last night. The lineup:

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE METAL MEAL—Earl Lanford, a Charlotte (N. The size of the ball has been slightly increased through the years. Lanford has been threatened with starvation ever since it was discovered that his lower esophagus had closed. An incision was made by way of an operation and the ball is lowered daily to prevent the organ from closing entirely and causing his death by starvation.

BOJARSKI WINS AS REFEREE HALTS BOUT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Bernie Bass of Philadelphia today stood discredited in the eyes of the local boxing fans who saw him short-change them with an exhibition of deliberate and despicable fouling in Motor Square Garden last night when he was disqualified by Referee Red Robinson in the third round of his scheduled 10-round main bout with Frankie Bojarski of Erie.

The former featherweight and junior lightweight champion faces an indefinite suspension in the state and forfeiture of his $1,000 guarantee.

Bass was winning when he suddenly cut loose with a series of head butts that would have done credit to a wrestler. He also brought up a knee at close quarters twice. The referee halted the bout after the first two butts, herded Bass into his own corner and warned him that a repetition of the butting would cause him to lose on a foul.

POLICE RESTORE ORDER

Benny listened belligerently and then talked back to the official as he moved out to resume fighting. He immediately proceeded to butt Bojarski again and again and again until Robinson finally moved between them and sent them to their corners. The while he moved to a neutral corner to write the disqualification on his voting slip.

Bass, pretending not to know that he had been disqualified, moved across the ring to Bojarski's corner and tried to resume the fighting. He was driven back into his own corner, where he stormed until policemen piled into the ring and forced him to sit down and prevented further disorder.

For Phil Glassman, veteran manager of Bass, it must be said that he tried to prevent the disqualification by yelling from his corner for Benny to cut out the butting. But Benny was too intent on the work in hand to heed him.

ACTION JUSTIFIED

Bojarski had a shade the better of the opening round on his forcing. Bass moved about deliberately and contented himself with a few long-range blows to the head and body. Late in the round Benny went partly through the ropes and Bojarski hit him while he was suspended there, drawing a rebuke from the referee.

The second round found Bass opening up and scoring effectively with both fists and slowing down Bojarski. Early in the third he began his butting and kneeing and Bojarski called him for it in strong language even before the referee issued the warning. Between his butting and solid hitting Benny was having things his own way when the sudden halt was called, after 2 minutes 15 seconds of the round, with John J. Customer, as usual, the loser.

The referee was entirely right in his ruling. The same stern methods in all cases of deliberate fouling, or stalling, or ignoring of the referee's instructions would put a quick stop to all abuses now indulged in by prima donna fighters. Bass weighed 132 pounds and Bojarski 135 at 3 p. m.

CLEMENTS SCORES KAYO

The best bout on the card witnessed by a comparatively small crowd, because of the frigid weather, was the second, a sockdologer between Jack (Leo) Clements of Jeannette and Charley Brodd, of McKeesport, heavyweights, which ended in a technical knockout victory for Clements after 2 minutes 10 seconds of the second round, when the Boxing Commissioner ordered a halt as Brodd was getting up, helpless, from his second knockdown for a count of nine. Up to the time Brodd was floored the first time,

By NICK ALTROCK
Baseball's Famous Humorist

BILOXI, Miss., March 15.—The big leagues are paying more attention to base-running this year, thanks to the sermon Pepper Martin gave on the base paths the last world series.

Formerly a guy that got on base acted like an uninstructed delegate and was liable to run either way. But when Pepper stole enough bases to be indicted for grand larceny, he showed 'em the rabbit ball was no more important than a rabbit's feet.

It will be quite a treat for us oldtimers to see base-runners doing a sneak with the red traffic lights against 'em. And, for the first time in a long spell, a third base coach will be expected to do something besides chew grass.

Probable Lineup

BRADDOCK		NEW CASTLE
Kreyenbuhl	f	Trydick
Krzyzaski	f	Marvin
Hale	c	Lasky
Barkley	g	Crum
Tomczuski	g	Reiber

The fourth and last semi-finalist in the twentieth annual W. P. I. A. L. basketball elimination series will be determined in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight when Ham Hudson's Braddock quintet, champion of Section VIII, clashes with New Castle, coached by Phil Bridenbaugh and champion of Section III.

Andy Lasky

New Castle, admitted to be one of the best floor machines developed in Western Pennsylvania scholastic circles, makes its first appearance of the tournament in the Stadium pavilion, having qualified for the quarter finals by defeating Zelienople, Section XVIII champion, in a battle at Beaver Falls. The score was 33-12. Zelienople previously had furnished one of the biggest upsets of the tournament by elimination of Leetsdale, champion of Section II, 17-14.

The winner of tonight's game earns the right to meet Ford City, champion of Section VI, in the second semi-final engagement in the Pitt Stadium pavilion Thursday night.

Fans attending tonight's contest will see two of the finest centers in the tournament in action. Andy Lasky has been a tower of strength to the Bridenbaugh combine, while Tommy Hale's work for Braddock has played an important part in the successes attained by the Hudson machine.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Score another big bullseye for Scoops Carey! The new manager of the Dodgers threw a fast one past several of his rival pilots when he landed the colorful Hack Wilson, and in the big deal of yesterday Scooper took over the David Harum role as he apparently fooled Daniel Howley for a loss.

Joe Stripp, one of the up-and-coming performers of the National League, gives Carey a big edge in the Dodger-Red swap, in my opinion. The Dodgers were weak at the hot corner and in adding strength to this post the Flatbush crew picked off an infielder who was the envy of many a manager.

Capable of playing several positions, Stripp is the sort of athlete whose value is not reflected in the averages. Joe can hit hard and often, he is a good baserunner and a fine fielder, but it is his "try" spirit which has endeared him to fans of the circuit. Injuries kept him out of action for almost 50 games last year, but when he was in action the Reds were a better ball club. Stripp batted .324.

The "rabbit ball" was missing from the Heydler circuit in the last campaign so Joe's mark is all the more meritorious. To finish as high as he did he had to throw dust in the eyes of such infielders as Frankie Frisch, Woodie English, Travis Jackson, Pie Traynor, Dick Bartell, Glenn Wright and others.

Herman, Gilbert and Lombardi may seem to be just as formidable as Stripp, Cuccinello and Sukeforth on paper, but in teamplay and team achievement, I believe Carey has the better trio. Tony Cuccinello batted better than .300 last year and he was good enough to take part in 154 games. Clyde Sukeforth fell below his great promise of the previous year; nevertheless, he is one "sweet" catcher. Clyde is a streak on the bases.

MONON LEAGUE TO MEET

By TOM BIRKS

The first meeting of the Monongahela Valley Baseball League will be held at National Hall, Monongahela, at 8 o'clock tonight. Secretary Tabory expects eight clubs to be on hand when the meeting convenes.

Last season, Patton, New Eagle Indians, Keenie's, Van Vooris and Floreffe played to large crowds. Tabory wants to hear from Gallatin, Riverview, Charleroi, Bentleyville, Manown, and all teams along the river. Finleyville may be back with a good club.

The move made by the City League to induce Bellevue to enter a team does not appear to be making much headway.

With the popular North Side sportsman, Art Rooney, back in town, there is a chance that the future of the North Side Civics soon will be settled. While five clubs are ready to go, it is evident the City League will have to depend upon either Fintex or Stowe to fill in a sixth club.

If Fintex officials decide to go along with the City loop, the home games will be played at McKinley Park. If Stowe returns to City League baseball, Pop Geer is the only ray of hope around McKees Rocks to pilot a team with City League possibilities.

The City League expects to be closed at Thursday's session. Officials are to be elected.

CAPITAL GIRLS BOW

MEYERS BOWL PARTNER DIES

Dr. Samuel I. Meyers, a partner with two brothers in the ownership of Meyers Bowl, North Braddock boxing arena, and well-known East End dentist, died suddenly at his home, 753 North Negley avenue, at 11 o'clock last night. Death was reported due to heart attack, caused by acute indigestion.

Dr. S. I. Meyers

Dr. Meyers was a partner of J. D. (Apples) Meyers, who also has promoted boxing shows at New Castle and Moose Temple, and an older brother, Louis, at Meyers Bowl. He leaves two other brothers, Morris and Max, who are now residents of Pittsburgh; his wife and five children.

Dr. Meyers was the designer of and superintended the building of the Meyers Bowl, and was an enthusiastic sports fan, although he had gained no fame as an athlete himself.

Funeral services are to be held from his late home tomorrow.

Meyers, born in North Carolina, came to this city when only eight years of age. He is a graduate of old Central High School and the University of Pittsburgh, class of 1911. He was 40 years old.

Three W. Va. Sport Captains Elected

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 15. (AP)—West Virginia University closed its winter sports calendar with the naming of three team captains for 1933. Robert Latham, of Buckhannon, was named boxing captain to succeed Leonard Hawkins, of Lumberport. Floyd Schwartzwalder, of Huntington, became wrestling captain. The basketball team chose Wilbur Sortet, of Huntington, to follow John Doyle, of Pennsboro.

BUCCANEERS TO OPPOSE MISSIONS TODAY

FIRST BATTLE HELD OFF BY WEATHER

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 15.—Rain which fell throughout the day, forced the calling off of the scheduled exhibition contest between the Pirates and the San Francisco Mission Club yesterday.

The postponement marked the first time since the Pirates began their spring training trip that the elements have interfered in their program. At Paso Robles, Gibson called off one practice session when bad weather threatened, but later he ordered the squad to take a hike, after the weather cleared up.

PIRATES RESTLESS

The Buc players were a restless lot as they spent the day idling around and did not relish it a bit. The Bucros are anxious for work, and several, especially the pitchers, have petitioned Gibson for a chance to display their wares.

John Niggeling, recruit hurler, who showed plenty of ability in the games played at the Paso Robles training camp, was Gibson's selection for the mound work yesterday, and will probably get the assignment if the teams are permitted to play today.

The Corsairs will be stacking up against formidable opposition in meeting the Mission club. Joe Devine has gathered a strong team. Ben Sankey and Jim Mosolf, former Pirates, have been playing well for the Missions in their contests to date.

MISSIONS GOING GOOD

The Missions have been treating major league opposition rather shabbily in exhibition games played thus far and already have piled up several victories in competition with big league clubs.

The Buccaneers once more have a squad in perfect condition. Ray Kremer and Charley Wood, who were placed on the ailing list just before the team left Paso Robles, have completely recovered.

The pair is anxious to get down to work, but Gibson has ordered them to take things easy for the next few days so they will not again be placed on the sick list.

The Pirates and Missions are to play today, provided, of course, that the weather is agreeable.

SHIELDS, LOTT ARE PRESSED

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Seeded stars of America and France continued to streak through the National indoor tennis tournament yesterday as third round matches were completed, but hopes of an American victory in the final Saturday were not enhanced by the showing of two of this country's leading players, Frank Shields and George Lott, Jr.

Both won, along with 11 other seeded entrants, but they were far from impressive. Lott, No. 1 on the American list, had a real tussle before he turned back young S. Ellsworth Davenport III, of New York, 6-1, 11-9, and Shields likewise had to put his best foot forward to silence Lieut. Richard Watt, Jr., of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, 6-4, 11-9.

Other favorites came through their third round matches with ease. Jean Borotra, of France, leading the way with a 6-0, 6-0 victory over Merritt Cutler, of New York.

The appearance of the Rosenblum-Celtics in Pittsburgh marks their second of the season here. In a previous game at Motor Square Garden they defeated the Brooklyn Americans.

Gorilla Jones Bout With O'Brien Halted

HOLYOKE, Mass., March 15.—(AP.)—Daniel J. Kelly, State Boxing Commissioner, took a hand last night in the bout between Gorilla Jones, of Akron, O., N. B. A. middleweight champion, and Frankie O'Brien, of Hartford, Conn. He ordered the bout stopped at the end of the eighth round and declared it "no contest" because of his belief that neither fighter was giving a satisfactory exhibition.

Referee Jack Watson, either misunderstanding the order or using his own judgment, announced O'Brien the winner. Commissioner Kelly left the arena immediately after the bout was stopped, but, when reached later, he said he had ordered both purses held up, and, if O'Brien, as was reported, had received his part of the money, it would have to be returned or the boxer would face the possibility of suspension.

Gorilla Jones is matched to box Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, at Motor Square Garden next Monday night.

CUBS TO BID FOR HERMAN

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—(AP.)—The big trade yesterday between the Cincinnati Reds and Brooklyn today had revived hope that Floyd (Babe) Herman may yet become a member of the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs need another outfielder who can hit, and Manager Rogers Hornsby and President William L. Veeck were reported to have conferred on approaching the Cincinnati club, which now holds title to Herman.

TO CONFER WITH HOWLEY

GLENDALE, Cal., March 15.—(INS.)—Expressing surprise that he was traded to Cincinnati from Brooklyn, Babe Herman, lusty hitter, nevertheless today had changed his attitude about holding out and said he would leave tomorrow for the Reds' training camp in Florida.

"I talked over long distance with Dan Howley. He asked me to come to camp at the club's expense and talk things over, and I'm going to do it," Herman said.

CUCCINELLO SIGNS

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the signing of Tony Cuccinello, who was obtained from the Cincinnati Reds in the season's biggest trade yesterday. Cuccinello will leave for Clearwater, the Dodgers' training camp.

Joe Stripp, who also figured in the deal that sent Babe Herman, Wally Gilbert and Ernest Lombardi to the Reds in a trade for Cuccinello, Clyde Sukeforth and Stripp, is in Florida and has not signed the new contract. He was a Cincinnati holdout.

Dodged by Tunney, Sharkey Declares

BOSTON, March 15.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey today charged that Gene Tunney "ran out of a bout" with him which was planned by the New York Madison Garden for March 15, 1926, according to Jack Conway, Boston American boxing expert.

As proof of his claim, Sharkey exhibited a contract entered into between himself and Madison Square Garden, of New York, on January 7, 1926, calling for a 12-round contest between the Boston heavyweight and Tunney.

Sharkey also released copies of another contract entered into on December 4, 1926, after he defeated Harry Wills, calling for him to meet Tunney in the New York Garden on September 15, 1927.

it was anybody's fight with Brodd outweighed 15 pounds, moving about and harrassing the swinging Clements with lefts that had him floundering.

Tony Marino, of Duquesne, easily defeated Joey Ross, New York veteran, in the eight-round semi-final, winning every round but the last one, in which Ross staged a bit of a rally. Both weighed 116 pounds. Due to the fact that Judge Frank Ferris voted for Ross, the referee's decision was necessary to officially decide the issue.

Max Elling, welterweight, of the Hill, was too tough for Ben Smitley, of Uniontown, and Referee Al Grayber stopped the opener after 2 minutes 40 seconds of the fifth round. Smitley was down for counts of nine in both the fourth and fifth rounds.

Tommy Ryan, former bantamweight boxer of Duquesne, now residing in Buffalo, helped to second Bojarski in the main bout and saw Marino, his kid brother, in action for only the second time as a professional.

"BETTY'S LATE," observed Mr. White, glancing at the old brass clock. "It's a bad night to be driving." Mrs. White agreed, peering through the window at the beating rain.

All week, their daughter was absent—teaching school fifty miles away—but the weekends always brought her home to the family circle. Tonight she was unduly late.

Suddenly the telephone rang. It was Betty calling. "It's the old rain," she explained, "but don't you worry. I'm safe in a garage and they're drying out the engine—the spark plugs are all wet."

"Well, that's a relief!" Mrs. White exclaimed. "I had visions of you skidding into a ditch!" Then, as she hung up the receiver, she added, "It's a comfort, that telephone!"

JACKETS SEEK NATIONAL ICE LOOP TALENT

By CARL W. SHATTO

A few skaters now performing as members of National Hockey League teams will be on the Pittsburgh Yellow Jacket roster when the 1932-33 International League race opens if Charley Reid, coach of the local squad, achieves his aim.

For the last two days Reid has been helping to wreck the depression by running up big telephone bills, and the men with whom he has been talking are National League managers. He hopes to land a few puckmen who have been found not yet quite ripe for the big show, and possibly a veteran or two who is destined to slip out of the major loop.

Although Reid refuses even to intimate that such is the case, the fact that he is dickering with National League teams prompts the belief that he will be back at the helm here next season. Pilots are not in the habit of building up a team for a successor, and the fact that he has been authorized to take steps to strengthen the Jackets for next season's campaigning indicates that he is to be retained.

The local skaters' next game is with the Detroit Olympics here Thursday, and Abbie Cox will be in the Pittsburgh nets against the Michiganders. Goalie Gordon Baxter, injured Saturday night in the fray with London, has been found to have sustained a painful shoulder injury which has left his right arm partially paralyzed. The hurt will not prove a permanent handicap, but Cox will guard the cage in the Jackets three remaining games.

Detroit is the team that the Redmen still have a mathematical chance of beating out in the race for a play-off berth, but it is so slight that one has to do much figuring to ferret it out.

"It was a runout.' Dempsey was afraid to fight Panka."

That was the statement of Peter J. Bunny Buntach, manager of George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, when he learned that Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, planned to go through with his exhibition against two opponents at Clarksburg, W. Va., tomorrow night after having passed up a scheduled four-round bout with Panka at Youngstown, O., last night, pleading sickness.

"Dempsey's manager, Leonard Sachs, called off the Panka match on Sunday afternoon, after Panka had left for the scene of battle," Bunny exploded. "Why? I'll tell you why. Because he learned that Panka was in training and in good condition and planned to go in there and try to knock out the old Man Mauler or be knocked out in the attempt. Dempsey isn't looking for that sort of stuff in his exhibitions. He doesn't want to meet young fellows who are well seasoned and have their minds set on punching it out. They said Dempsey had the flu. You don't get over that in a day or two.

"Now I won't be satisfied until I get Panka in with Dempsey somewhere else. I charge that he ran out of the Youngstown bout. If he didn't how about agreeing to box Panka in one of his other spots? George is as sore about this as I am. He trained faithfully. Big names mean nothing to him. He was a sparring partner of Champion Max Schmeling last summer, and knows that champions and former champions are only human after all. I'd like nothing better than to have Dempsey agree to box George in a decision match here, since the boxing commission will not sanction a no-decision exhibition for Jack."

Between Rounds

Benny Bass passed up a match with Pedro Gallart, Puerto Rican lightweight, to go through with the Bojarski battle here last night. Bobby Wallace, of Cleveland, will meet Patsy Wine and Cookie Lynn, veteran of a hundred fights, in a double main event at Cleveland Thursday night.

Jim McGarr reports a good entry for his diamond amateur tournament in McKeesport Thursday night of this and next week.

Jack Sharkey, of Boston, the latest contender to the heavyweight throne, will begin training for his match with Max Schmeling, German champion, in Madison Square Garden, New York, on June 21, at Speculator, N. Y., on June 1. Jack Dempsey, manager of the Boston boxer, announced yesterday. Sharkey will be in the same ring, and will show to much better advantage than he did in his two comeback bouts, Dempsey said. He will be in better condition, too, for he will train here instead of on the Pacific coast, as he did for his last fight.

Gorilla Jones, of Akron, N. B. A. middleweight champion, and Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, do the main bout honors at the Garden next Monday night.

GRAIN VALUES SHOW GAINS

CHICAGO, March 15.—Helped by 5 per cent enlargement of France's wheat import quota, grain values tended upward early today. There were also indications of an overnight improvement of North American wheat export business. Opening unchanged to ⅞c higher, wheat afterward held near the initial figures. Corn started unchanged to ⅜c up and subsequently kept firm.

Raising of the foreign wheat quota in France made the total 30 per cent allowed to be mixed with native French wheat. Acting also as a stimulus to buyers was a Kansas official statement saying extensive injury to the wheat crop in the western third of the state was probable because of lack of moisture together with recent severe cold. In addition, advices from a leading crop expert said that crop prospects from Dodge City, Kan., to Dalhart, Tex., were generally poor, and that if rains were delayed much longer, a large amount of acreage would likely be a failure.

Further upturns in wheat values ensued as evidence accumulated that liquidation by wheat holders was over for at least the time being.

Motor Production Fails to Hold Gain

DETROIT, March 15.—Automobile production in the week ended March 12 failed to continue the advance initiated in the preceding week. According to Cram's automotive reports, output amounted to 34,587 cars and trucks, which compares with 35,461 units in the previous week and 60,769 in the corresponding week of last year. The principal causes for the decline were the reduction in all divisions of Chrysler and the sharp drop in Hudson-Essex output.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Hershey Chocolate Cash Position Strengthened During 1931.

Hershey Chocolate is favored in some quarters for scale purchases on reactions because in addition to showing an increase in earnings last year, the company strengthened its financial position. Current assets were $10,181,456 and current liabilities $3,598,009, with an increase of $2,425,490 in working capital. Cash rose about $217,000 to $2,522,842. There was an increase of $1,451,455 in inventories, which was due to the drastic deflation of commodity prices in the past year.

Highest banking quarters in Wall street assert that there is no parallel between the Eastman and Kreuger deaths. While Kreuger was known to have been driven to the verge of nervous collapse by the entanglement of his world-wide financial affairs, the Eastman enterprises were in an unassailable financial position, bankers assert. They attributed Eastman's death to advanced years and ill health, rather than to the worries incident to the economic situation over the world.

Pools have become less active again because of the resistance which was encountered when their favorites were put up. The fact that the general list did not have the stamina to carry through on the recoveries prevented the group operations from attracting a good public following. In addition those who had taken long positions in the pool stocks were inclined to accept profits and increased the supply, causing the groups to step aside in some instances.

Reduction in the National Steel dividend to a $1 basis is in line with conditions in the steel industry. However, the company is in a position to take advantage of any improvement which might develop. Increased earnings would mean the restoration of the dividend to a higher basis, because the views of the management on the matter are well known. They have stated on more than one occasion that stockholders are entitled to distributions, if possible, even in periods of depression.

Granite City Steel furnished the unusual spectacle late last week of a steel company maintaining its regular dividend, though the $2 rate was not earned in 1931, net per share having amounted to $1.13. The company experienced a good gain in rolling mill schedules during the past month due to some increase in the hand-to-mouth buying. Prices of flat products in the St. Louis district are better than a month or so ago, but still are below the levels of last fall. Freedom from dependence on the automobile trade has helped Granite City, which has an unusual record among steel concerns in the current business situation.

When Lorillard moved ahead last week the Street immediately connected the name of a prominent operator with the movement. This trader had been credited with sponsorship for many advances in individual stocks in recent sessions. Those who watched the dealings on the floor reported that the issue had met a good demand from floor operators, which accounted for the firmness.

Reserve Members' Loans Decrease

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement as of March 9 shows decreases for the week of $217,000,000 in loans and investments, $33,000,000 in net demand deposits, $72,000,000 in government deposits and $77,000,000 in borrowings from reserve banks. Time deposits increased $14,000,000.

Loans on securities totaled $5,426,000, a drop of $14,000,000. All other loans aggregated $7,010,000, a decrease of $138,000,000.

Estimates Wheat Output Smaller

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Department of Agriculture estimates world wheat output in 42 countries in 1931 is 3,602,253,000 bushels, compared with 3,676,926,000 bushels in 1930.

Trading was quiet later in the morning, but prices held generally steady. At midday May was selling around 6.00 and October 7.29, with the more active months about 1 to 3 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, March 15.—Cotton, 7,000 bales including 5,700 American. LONDON STOCKS CLOSE FIRM

LONDON, March 15.—(INS.)—Stocks closed firm on the London exchange today. Early improvement in oil shares transmitted an encouraging tone to the market as a whole.

Swedish Class B shares rose sharply to 3 points, 8 shillings, 9 pence, while Kreuger & Toll issues were steady.

Eastman Kodak common, selling in 100-pound par blocks, closed at from 103 to 105 pounds. Yesterday's closing quotations were between 110 and 113 pounds.

Gilt-edged issues closed strong.

PARIS, March 15.—Kreuger issues listed on the bourse showed relief today from the flood of unloading yesterday. Kreuger & Toll bonds, which fell from 147½ francs on Saturday to 50 francs yesterday, recovered to 65 francs.

BERLIN, March 15.—There was a general upward movement of stocks on the bourse under the leadership of Kreuger shares, Reichsbank and I. G. Farben.

BANKING IDEALS

Aside from its functions of paying and receiving money, a bank has many opportunities to serve its depositors, both individuals and corporations. In such matters as investments, collections, safekeeping of securities, advice on financial programs or furnishing credit information, the modern bank can be of immeasurable service. It is in the efficient performance of such functions that the bank reaches the highest ideals of banking service.

FLURRY IN RAIL SHARES HALTS UPSWING

Several Gains of Point Or 2 Made Before Brisk Selling Wave Appears

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Another flurry of selling in the rails halted a modest rally in the stock market today.

The fact that selling pressure against the Kreuger issues in both the home and foreign markets was lifted, brought some improvement in sentiment, but domestic business conditions apparently stood in the way of any active operations for the rise in the share market.

During the morning several issues rose a point or two in extremely dull trading, with shorts apparently providing most of the buying. Rather brisk selling came into the rails after midday. The morning gains were mostly lost and issues registering recessions of 1 to 2 points from the previous close included United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Gillette, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, Missouri Pacific preferred, New York Central, Union Pacific and Santa Fe. Kreuger & Toll and International Match preferred rallied somewhat, than about lost their gains.

Sporadic selling in the railroad issues has been a disheartening influence in the market of late. The formation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, by removing threats of receiverships, resulted in a friendlier feeling for the carrier securities for a time, but Wall street now leans to the view that it is one thing to preserve the roads' solvency and another to restore their earning power.

Eastman Kodak completely regained its stability, after yesterday's drop in light selling in response to the death of its founder. Mr. Eastman held only 17,000 shares of the stock at the time of his death.

The consolidated condition statement of weekly reporting Federal Reserve member banks as of March 2 showed a drop of $152,000,000 in loans. Net demand deposits were off only $33,000,000, while time deposits gained $14,000,000.

The money market was somewhat easier. Outside call money was offered ¼ of 1 per cent under the official 2½ per cent rate, and federal funds were quoted ½ to 1 per cent, against 1 to 1¼ yesterday.

AYRES SEES TRADE GAIN

CLEVELAND, O., March 15.—(AP.)—Business conditions are better in March than they were in December, January or February, says Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company and nationally known economist. He added:

"This, despite the fact business activity is not greater now than it was then.

"The improvement is in the fundamentals rather than on the surface. It is present in fact, even though it is to but slight degree reflected in the figures.

"In recent weeks there has been a long series of developments that are either directly conducive to business improvement or are safeguards against continued decline. Even a partial list of them makes an impressive array."

Great Lakes Paper Declared Bankrupt

TORONTO, Ontario, March 15.—(AP.)—The Great Lakes Paper Company, Ltd., was adjudged bankrupt upon petition of the Inland Coal and Dock Company, Minneapolis, Minn., which presented a claim for $252,509.

The company has a large pulp and paper mill at Fort William and originally was established by the Backus interests. F. C. Clarkson has been named guardian of the property.

Standard of Ohio Advances Gasoline

CLEVELAND, March 15.—Standard Oil Company of Ohio will raise the price of gasoline ½ cent a gallon throughout its territory, effective tomorrow.

DETROIT, March 15. Retail price of ethyl gasoline has been reduced 2 cents per gallon to 15½ cents, state tax included, by two leading refiners.

BENNETT BACKS SUN LIFE

OTTAWA, Ont., March 15 (CANS.)—Characterizing as malicious and malevolent attacks made over a period of four years on the management and solvency of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, Premier Bennett today declared unnecessary any parliamentary inquiry into the affairs of the company.

Oversight exercised by the Dominion Department of Insurance was admitted to be declared the most rigid in the world and the department was quite convinced of the absolute solvency of the company.

This contention was supported by the actuarial audits of insurance of 40 states of the United States and the authorities of other countries, where the company did business. "We do not believe it was in the public interest or in the proper balance of things to lend the machinery of Parliament to investigate personal attacks," the Premier stated.

The Sun Life is referred to as "Canada's greatest financial institution." Attacks on the company have been given wide circulation throughout the United States.

Tax Collectors' Queer Notions Told by Forbes

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

THE INCOME tax people summoned me yesterday. They have queer notions. Naturally, I have to buy a lot of books, many periodicals as well as newspapers, moving soon and night to enable me to earn my living. Without such things I couldn't make enough to become subject to an income tax.

But would the taxgatherers allow me one cent for these necessary expenses? They would not. The reason? Because I don't get a receipt for every nickel or dollar so spent or produce documents to prove that I made such expenditures.

I asked the gentleman who imposed the extra penalty on me whether he wouldn't be willing to spend what I spent in order to earn the income I was prepared to pay tax on. He readily agreed he would! But he was adamant in refusing to allow me to deduct from my taxable income $1 for expenditures on tools absolutely essential to the earning of my livelihood.

Taxes have wrecked more than one nation, both ancient and modern. In the United States taxes have been multiplying appallingly. Not content with the levies already in operation, the politicians propose to give the income tax extortion screw several more painful turns.

THEY PROPOSE to take $40 of every $100 earned beyond a certain amount. Let them try to collect! Andrew Mellon, when Secretary of the Treasury, emphasized that whenever an attempt was made to pile undue large income tax burdens on the rich, the rich simply switched to tax exempt securities.

Now Washington proposes to take a much larger share of income which the citizen has to earn by the sweat of his brow and brain.

About the only class who have not had to suffer during all the long period of acute depression are those who love and gather income taxes and others paid by tax-payers. The old song "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier," could fittingly be paraphrased to read "I'm Raising My Son to Be a Tax-Eater." Tax-eaters fare better than tax-payers these days.

THE FINANCIAL consequences of the Ivar Kreuger suicide are being grossly exaggerated. There's no reason why enterprises outside of the Kreuger & Toll list should suffer the slightest depreciation. Kreuger was a picturesque figure. But he wasn't quite the colossus of worldwide ramifications the newspapers have represented. He wasn't enough of a factor in this country to warrant the nervousness Wall street gave way to yesterday. The effect should be ephemeral.

HATS OFF to companies giving exhibitions of conspicuous courage!

Buick this morning publishes prominent advertisements in 2,000 newspapers will put up today more than 15,000 posters, will run "double-page spreads" in leading periodicals, will this week employ an unprecedentedly large army of Western Union messengers to deliver 1,600,000 messages, will follow this up by having the same army act as a la old-time town criers, by giving a verbal message to 1,600,000 citizens as a special salutation is handed over.

Meanwhile thousands of showroom managers and still more thousands of salesmen in the field have been trained to act in unison. Not less than $1,000,000 is being spent on this week's unique campaign to arouse interest in one (low-priced) Buick model. Said one General Motors official:

"We are doing our bit to push business off its dead center."

If enough other business organizations would institute similar initiative and courage, wouldn't the effect be sufficiently stimulating to end stagnation and revive activity and employment?

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 15.—Some [illegible] buying [illegible] appeared in the bond market today, but prices on the whole continued to follow an irregular trend. The United States government list had an easy tone. Scattered rail [illegible] recovered some of the previous losses. Swedish [illegible] Dominion 4 1/4s and Norway 5s picked up from [illegible] around 2 points. Bulgarian obligations continued weak. Some of the Germans steadied and Poland and Belgian bonds gained.

Confidence in Banks Restored: Suspensions Drop to Small Figure

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

FEAR ABOUT BANKS has come to an end. The National Credit Corporation and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation have demonstrated that they are more than instruments of propaganda—they have effectively stopped abnormal drains on the credit structure.

The story is told in a few simple figures. A tabulation made by the American Banker shows that the bank closings since March 1 have been the lowest since 1928. That year registered the low point of the preceding 10 years for bank suspensions.

The bank closings last week numbered only 11. All were small institutions. Their aggregate deposits amounted to only $990,000. In the preceding week 11 banks closed with aggregate deposits of $1,250,000.

So far in March only 13 banks have been closed. This compares with 124 in February, 372 in January and an average of 309 a month in the last quarter of 1931.

* * *

Runs Are No Longer A Serious Menace

THIS ABRUPT change in the banking situation demonstrates the fact that any bank which has real assets behind it has nothing to fear from abnormal withdrawals. If the bank has been properly managed and the assets have value the bank can get assistance to meet an emergency.

The events of the past year, it may be assumed, have weeded out all the banking institutions which actually were unsound. Along with the weak banks they forced the closing of many perfectly solvent institutions. It is unfortunate that machinery to help banks was not established at an earlier date. It is highly probable that if the banks of this country had had access to a National Credit Corporation or a Reconstruction Finance Corporation a year ago, the number of closings would have reached only a small percentage of the actual figure.

Bond Advance Adds To Strength of Banks

THE POSITION of banks has been greatly strengthened by the advance in the bond market which was under way from the beginning of March to last Thursday. Nearly all banks have large holdings of bonds. The slump in the market values of some of these assets greatly reduced the liquidity of banking organizations. The turn towards improvement, which has marked the greater part of this month, has done much to restore the value of bank assets.

But the greatest recovery in bank assets has been in the restoration of public confidence. This has been reflected in the downward turn in the volume of currency in circulation shown in the last Federal Reserve Bank statement. It has been evident in the fact the banking calls for aid from the newly established credit organizations have been relatively small.

While there has been little change in actual business volume, the country has recovered from its acute case of fright and this will prove to be one of the greatest factors in starting the world back to normal prosperity.

RED INK YEAR'S RESULT TOLD TODAY

Intelligently Analytical Have Discounted Drop in Reported Taxable Incomes

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Today is the day when the truth concerning the devastating effect of continuing depression on income from profit, wages, interest and rent will be told to the federal government.

There is no tendency toward a bias for optimism on this day of days when the citizen or corporation tells the government how he came out on balance in the red ink year of 1931. The intelligently analytical have discounted a vast decline in reported taxable income. From a speculative standpoint, a more important question is how will income, based on business profits, be in the remainder of 1932. The economic statistician of one large corporation forecasts some mild improvement in the next quarter, with an accelerated rate of recovery beginning next autumn.

Mr. Rukeyser.

AYRES SEES UPTURN

The principal economic soothsayer in the Middle West, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, of the Cleveland Trust Company, in his monthly reading of the crystal ball, today reports that "business conditions are genuinely better in March than they were in December or January or February, despite the fact that business activity is not greater now than it was then." He makes a point of the fact that the reconstruction program at Washington has corrected economic fundamentals.

The credit narcotic is not a cure-all, but the stimulant was dramatically applied at a time when business had been suffering from ruinous deflation, which had resulted in a price spasm. The new program is intended in part to change the popular psychology through convincing the business public that there is a bottom. Commodity prices, which have been wavering of late, will turn upward when and if business executives and consumers are convinced that they are going higher for justifiable reasons. The new credit policy creates an economic setting for the successful employment of sound business methods by inventive executives.

SPLIT-UP IN REVERSE

The process of deflation has already gone far toward cutting down financial garments to the new measurements of the body economic. In the Chicago Federal Reserve district, 208 banks were eliminated in 1931 through mergers which effected a net decline of 25 per cent in capitalization of the banks involved, amounting to a scaling down of approximately $42,000,000.

The country is now going through stock split-ups in reverse. Instead of increasing capitalization, it is now fashionable for companies to scale down nominal capital. It has been computed that 176 companies made such adjustments in 1931, and thus far in 1932, 36 companies have taken such action, and 20 more in process of doing so.

France's Foreign Trade Unfavorable

PARIS, March 15.—France had an unfavorable balance of foreign trade in February despite drastic new import restrictions. Imports totaled 2,399,000,000 francs and exports were 1,168,000,000 francs, leaving a trade deficit of 630,000,000 francs. Unfavorable trade balance for the first two months of the year was 1,165,000,000 francs.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, March 15.—The market was due 2½ to 2¾ pence lower, opened 1 to 1½ pence off and 12:15 p. m. was off 1 1/2 to 1¾ pence.

The market closed ¾ @ 1 1/4 d lower.

SCHOOL GOLF PLAY DATES ANNOUNCED

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Aside from an interesting note to the effect that the likeable Andy Brannigan, Edgewood Country Club caddie champion, is to be assistant pro to Jimmy O'Donnell, new instructor at the Churchill Valley Club, the golf news of the day has to do with the Interscholastic Golf Conference, which met at Shady Side Academy last night, sorted out a 10-team loop and formulated a two-section schedule, to begin April 22. Only eight schools participated in the conference's initial season last year, Arnold Prep and Peabody being the new members.

Kiski, last year's winner of the C. E. Lott Trophy, was shifted to Section 11, and will play with Bellevue, Carrick, Oliver and Peabody this season. Section 1 is comprised of Taylor, Allderdice, Shady Side, Langley, McKeesport and Arnold. Only six players will make up a team this year.

John H. Irwin, of Allderdice, was re-elected president; Dr. W. H. McCall, of Kiski, vice president, and Capt. W. A. Palmer, of Shady Side, secretary-treasurer. Clarence Overend, Tech graduate manager, was named member-at-large.

Langley is to play at Thornburg, Bellevue at Shannopin; Allderdice at Pup's Foot or Schenley, Oliver at Highland; McKeesport at Youghiogheny; Peabody at Stanton Heights; Carrick at South Park, while Shady Side and Kiski have their own courses. The complete schedule follows:

Section 1—April 22, Allderdice at Shady Side, Langley at McKeesport, Arnold open. April 26, Arnold at Langley, McKeesport at Allderdice, Shady Side open. April 29, Shady Side at McKeesport, Allderdice at Arnold, Langley open. May 3, Langley at Allderdice, Arnold at Shady Side, McKeesport open. COLLEGE MITT WIELDERS SET FOR TOURNEY

By JESS CARVER

Competition among the punchers in the 165-pound class in the first championship tournament of the newly-organized Intercollegiate Boxing Conference, booked for Carnegie Tech's gymnasium Friday and Saturday evenings, figures to boast more spice and pep than in any other weight.

It appears that the conference members, Pitt, Tech, Duquesne, Wash-Jeff, West Virginia and Bucknell, are better off for boys between 160 and 170 pounds than any others. Leastways, the quartet who've been nominated to battle for the conference title here rate highly. Pitt will have Cowboy Siegel, the famous Iowa hog caller; Temple a clever performer in Mell; West Virginia the dangerous Latham, and Wash-Jeff the blasting footballer, Demedowitz.

Two substitutions, by the way, have been made so far, one each by Pitt and West Virginia. Lathan is taking Voorhees' place in the Mountaineer lineup and Santicola is to replace Schampf as Pitt's 135-pound puncher.

There are four entries in all classes save the 175-pound division, where Waldron, of Tech; Hawkins, of West Virginia, and Kubacki, of Bucknell, have the field to themselves. One of the three will get into the finals without putting on a glove, but when he gets in there he'll need plenty.

Lily Lou Tells Her Story and Expects Singer's Offer To Be Withdrawn

CHAPTER XXXV

Lily Lou walked around like a sleep-walker, starry eyed, a little tremulous.

It couldn't have happened. The thing was absurd. She tried Gwin's brittle patience almost to the breaking point by asking, over and over:

"You're sure she really meant it? She's really and truly going to take me?"

"Yes, she's going to take you all right. Good gosh, must you be notified a year in advance? Can't you take a piece of luck and rejoice? Stop arguing about it."

Lily Lou stopped arguing about it. It couldn't have happened . . . but it had. It really had.

She wired the family:

SAILING WEDNESDAY ON ACQUITANIA WITH MADAME NITA NAHLMAN AND WILL STUDY WITH HER IN PARIS. WONDERFUL CHANCE FOR ME. LETTER FOLLOWS. MUCH LOVE. LILY LOU.

Mrs. Manchester was delighted. "Mme. Nahlman! Really!"

"Manchester gets a second hand kick out of everything we do," Maxine said.

FRIENDS INDIFFERENT

Maxine did not show much surprise at the news but nothing surprised Maxine very much. She made a great fuss about Lily Lou's good luck and dragged all her clothes out of the closet to help her pack, then remembered an engagement and went off in the midst of it. Nobody really cared very much what happened to you here in New York.

Not even Gwin. He was delighted in a way but in another way he didn't seem to care. The same with Madame Nahlman. Offer you the other bed in her de luxe stateroom on the ship, promise to tutor you in Paris and then seem to forget all about you.

Lily Lou flew to get her passport, her visas, to buy the little extra things one always needs to draw out the $150 still left in the bank.

She was going to Europe with Nita Nahlman. She Lily Lou Lansing from Woodlake. She hurried with her packing, her last minute ironing. She wanted time to write a long letter to May.

A little smile trembled at the corner of her mouth as she wrote. A sly little smile of triumph. . . . May knew a girl who had a friend who worked on a newspaper. May would tell her friend and the friend would tell her friend and it would be in the paper probably with that picture she had taken she said she was 18. She had changed a lot since then, but Ken would remember her more like that so it was just as well.

TORTURED BY CONSCIENCE

She couldn't help wanting Ken to know. There wasn't any harm in that. Not even Peggy Sage could object to that, to his reading about her in a paper . . .

She went to her bureau and took out the four newspaper clippings she had hidden under her handkerchiefs.

The Sargent Steamship Line and the Sage Navigation Company had merged.

Kenfield Cares, Sargent III en route for South America.

Kenfield Cares, Sargent III general freight agent of the Sargent Navigation Company, on board the yacht Seaforth, to race next summer in the Pacific Coast ambush.

Miss Peggy Alexander Sage whose engagement to Kenfield Sargent III.

Lily Lou rolled up the clippings, stuck them in a corner of her trunk.

Her conscience, the miserable Woodlake conscience began to torture her. How could she go to Europe with Mme. Nahlman not knowing that in April . . .

She tried to remember Dwight Gwin's exact words. "None of her darn business! Don't you mention it to her. Trump up some excuse to see friends or something and slip off to the American hospital at Neuilly. Nita's broadminded. Keep your mouth shut and don't spring it until you have to."

REASSURED BY GWIN

It had been the first thing she thought of. "I can't go!" she had cried to Gwin two minutes after he had assured her that Mme. Nahlman was serious about taking her.

She had let him convince her because she wanted to be convinced. She couldn't give it up. Think of it . . . the chance to get away from New York, away from all the prying eyes. . . . It would be easy to slip away later, plead ill health, perhaps go to that hospital in Neuilly. Nahlman need never really know. She'd have enough money. $150 left of Ken's father's money and over $100 in currency saved from her salary from Gwin, and a $20 money order her mother had sent her for her birthday, and American money goes so far in Europe now. Besides Nahlman said that she wouldn't need money—none at all.

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing has ambitions to become an opera singer. She meets Kentfield Sargent, son of a wealthy shipper. Ken is also interested in Peggy Sage, prominent society girl. Ken admits his love for Lily Lou and they go away and are married. When Lily Lou first sees Ken's mother she is told that Ken was not old enough to get married. Anxious days follow. Then Lily Lou is told by Ken's father that the marriage has been annulled. He gives her $500 and a ticket to New York. In New York she has a hard time getting a job and her money runs low. From a home town paper she reads that Ken has become engaged to Peggy. She learns that she is to become a mother. She gets a job as accompanist with Dwight Gwin, voice teacher. Nita Nahlman, famous opera singer, hears Lily Lou sing and offers to take her to Europe to study with her.

Now Go On

Yes, and that was just it. How could she let Nahlman pay all her expenses, and not tell her the truth? She'd never take her if she knew. Might as well give it up right now.

But how could she back out of it now with Maxine already counting on bringing Frances over to take her place. People always are so disgusted with you when you say you're going somewhere and then you don't . . .

VISITS SINGER

Lily Lou walked up and down the small green and white room, stepping over little heaps of shoes and boxes and tissue paper on the floor. She put her old lace dress in the trunk and saw her mother making it, holding the needle and material too close to her tired eyes.

The Woodlake conscience triumphed. She wasn't ashamed of having a baby, she had been married by a minister. But to cheat Madame Nahlman . . .

No, she couldn't do that.

She put on her hat and coat and called a taxi, glorying in her courage and extravagance.

She drove up to the hotel in great style and sailed, head high, eyes bright, to the desk.

Madame Nahlman was out.

Back home. A sleepless night.

In the morning she went early to the hotel. Madame Nahlman was feeling:

I'll wait, she said.

She sat alone in the lobby surrounded by empty chairs and a general air of waiting. A green-uniformed porter lamplessly dusted tables straightened chairs. Two bellhops drowsed on a bench.

At 10 Madame Nahlman answered the telephone herself.

Lily Lou went up. Madame was in bed eating heartily of ham and eggs.

I'll send for some breakfast for you . . . a cup of coffee some brioche!

TELLS HER STORY

Lily Lou was too shy. She said she had had breakfast. Then she sat and watched Madame Nahlman eat. It took a long while to gather courage to say what she had come to say. Madame Nahlman didn't understand at first. She sat straight up in bed, her blue eyes wide, her sour reddish hair dressing her shoulders.

Lily Lou tried again.

This time there was no possible misunderstanding. Madame Nahlman drained her coffee cup, put it down on the tray and stared at Lily Lou for a long minute. Then she fell back on her pillow and screamed with choking gurgling laughter.

She laughed until she cried, and Lily Lou had difficulty in not crying too.

Oh! she choked . . . if that isn't the . . . the most . . .

When she quieted a little Lily Lou rose to go. She was pale and very calm.

I thought you'd feel that way, she said. It was nice of you to ask me to go, Madame Nahlman. I'm only sorry that it wasn't possible.

Under the bright blue gaze of the hennaed prima donna she could hardly continue. She spread her hands in a hopeless gesture.

You have changed your mind, you won't come with me?

Oh, no, I mean, yes, of course, I'd go, but how could I let you take me when . . . when . . .

Madame Nahlman went off into another fit of laughter. She seemed to be considering some private jokes, joke of her own. "Life! So complicated . . ." Another gale of laughter. We sail tonight, just the same, only you will be seasick, my poor little child."

ALL IN A DAY By MARK HELLINGER

THE EPISODE actually happened a short time ago in the Worcester (Mass.) City Hospital. According to Tom Donnelly, a number of male patients were sitting around in the sun parlor and discussing various topics of the day. Among them was Bert, a shriveled-up old gentleman who had recently suffered a stroke that affected his left side.

Bert, who was in his 68th year, had a pet name that he steered into the conversation every now and then. The name was that of Dr. Milton, a veterinary who had been Bert's employer for the last 40 years. Bert raved about the man, even though he did qualify his remarks at certain times by saying that his boss was a trifle peculiar in some ways.

"A wonderful man, boys," the sick man would cackle. "And after workin' for him for nigh on to 41 years, you've gotta admit I know somethin' about him. Of course, I do say that he ain't the easiest employer in the world, and that I deserved every penny he paid me, but that don't change the man none. It's a pleasure to be near him."

Another patient sniffed.

"Seems a little strange to me, Bert," he muttered. "Here you been sick for more than a week and he ain't even been around to see you or nothing."

Bert shrugged his shoulders.

"You gotta understand," he asserted, "that the doctor's a very busy man. He'll be around all right. He even owes me a few dollars, and I know he wouldn't let much time go by without payin' me. He'll be here soon. Just watch and see."

The sick man was right. At 11 o'clock the following morning in walked Dr. Milton, the veterinary. He was a distinguished-looking bird with gold-rimmed glasses and plenty of pompous trimmings.

"Well, well, well," he cried, "if it isn't my dear, old friend and faithful worker, Bert Maxwell! I feel a little ashamed of myself for not being here sooner, but you know how it is.

"Tell me, my man, how do you feel? And are you comfortable in your surroundings?"

Bert's face glowed with pleasure.

"I'm doin' fine, thank you, doctor," he replied, "and I think I'm gonna be all right. I want you to meet all the boys, doctor. Boys, this is the finest man I know, my employer for 40 years, Dr. Milton."

The veterinary acknowledged the introduction with one of those sweeping bows that went out of style with the linen duster. Then he turned back to the sick man.

"Bert," he boomed, "you don't know how terrible a task it is been to attempt to replace you. You were so faithful to me and to our work that I simply don't know what I will do without you.

"Why, man, do you realize you went through 40 years without ever losing a day? Do you know that this is the first time in all these years that you have ever been sick? It grieves me as I look at you now. It grieves me very much."

Bert looked very wan and tired.

"I feel bad about it too, doctor," he murmured. "You don't know how happy I'd be if I were back on the old job again."

Dr. Milton sighed heavily.

"You've made it very hard for me," he lamented. "I have been going through hades to find the right man for your position. I have plenty of applicants, of course, because of my great reputation, but when I tell them that they must eat and sleep in my house, that they are subject to call 24 hours a day, and that they cannot possibly have a vacation at any time, they do not seem eager for the job.

"I don't understand it at all. Here we have all this talk about depression. And yet, when men are offered an excellent opportunity, they turn it down. Ah, well.

The veterinary arose, reached into his pocket and drew forth an envelope. He looked about to make certain that everyone was listening, and he tapped Bert's shoulder.

"Bert," he stated, "you are unquestionably the most faithful employe a man could possibly find. In this envelope, you will find a slight token by my esteem."

The sick man's expression showed the utmost gratitude.

"Oh, Dr. Milton," he cried, "you shouldn't have . . ."

The veterinary smiled softly.

"That's all right, Bert," he said. "What I have done, I have done because you deserve it. You will remember that, on the day you fell ill, you were carried to the hospital at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

"In that envelope you will find not only the wages that are due you, but you will note that I have paid you for the entire day!" . . .

IT'S AN odd story that Milton Hess unfolds, and you'll probably find it in one of the magazines before many months have passed. But it sounds as though it could happen to any of us at the present time, so here it goes.

Jack, a bright, young chap, needed a job and needed it badly. He went to Walter, a friend who had mixed up in politics, and asked for assistance in obtaining a position. Walter listened to Jack's story, fidgeted around for a few minutes and finally gave him a letter to a fellow official, who, Walter was certain, would find something for Jack.

The young man thanked him volubly and immediately went to the office of Walter's friend. The latter gentleman shook his head sadly and went into a long discussion on the difficulty of obtaining a position under present conditions. At the end, however, he brightened.

"Walter is a very good friend of mine," he said, "and I am going to help you for his sake. Here is a letter to Russell, an old pal of mine who will surely be able to do something for you. Good luck."

Russell proved to be a combination of the two men whom Jack had already seen. He was sympathetic, yet he was extremely dubious about any jobs. He finally wound up by handing Jack a letter to still another man. This chap's name was Peter, and Russell was definitely certain that Peter would give Jack a position.

Slightly groggy, the young man hastened to Peter's office. There he received a warm greeting until he handed over the letter from Russell. At that point, Peter frowned.

"I don't know why my friends are always sending me people," he grunted. "Not that I doubt your ability in any way, young man, but I have so many people who want jobs that I really don't know where to begin.

"Tell you what I'll do. Inasmuch as I like Russell a very great deal, I'm going to try to do something for you. It may not amount to anything, but it's certainly worth a try. I'm going to give you a letter to a personal friend of mine who handles a great many men.

"I'll make the note strong. And if he can't help you, then nobody can."

A few minutes later Jack stepped outside and looked at the latest note. He almost fell through the floor. The letter was addressed to Walter, the man to whom Jack had originally gone! . . .

MANCHURIA HEIGHTS.—First of all, may I interrupt to ask Mrs. Frisby to do something for me? You'll do something for me, won't you, Mrs. Frisby o' My Dreams? Look in the Little Daisy Cook Book I gave you for your last birthday, and send me the recipe for chop suey. I promised a little almond-eyed friend of mine that I'd teach her how to make chop suey in exchange for some important appointments she was able to make for me. And if you have any chiffon hosiery you're not using, send that along, too. Size 7½, I believe.

I've been spending a good deal of my time whittling souvenirs out of peach pits for my friends. Then, too, I find so many folks who want Congressman Frisby's autograph. I almost think sometimes that had I known the strain and worry this trip would mean I would have stayed home. Oh, not really, of course—just funning. I was never one to be found napping when my country knocks.

A Shameful Report

Audit of the City Treasurer's Office Shows the Need For Much Housecleaning Work.

Accustomed as the citizens of Pittsburgh have become during the last two years to reports of waste, inefficiency and corruption in the municipal government, no one with a spark of civic pride can be so hardened as not to be shocked by the evidence of wrongdoing adduced in the report issued yesterday by the auditors who have been investigating the City Treasurer's office.

Just one of the charges may be mentioned as indicative of the cynical disregard of decency which seems to have marked the official conduct of some of the municipal officials.

It is asserted that Sarah Crone bequeathed $4,500 to the Tuberculosis Hospital for the improvement of the women's ward and that the money was used instead to buy materials for a new home for the hospital superintendent and for the purchase of a motion picture machine and radio.

Municipal housecleaning is in order.

The County's Business

It Becomes Increasingly Evident That Commissioner Mansfield Should Resign from the Senate.

When members of the Welfare Fund and the Emergency Association sought to confer with the County Commissioners in regard to the proposed $10,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief they were unable to arrange a meeting because of the illness of two of the three commissioners—W. D. Mansfield and C. M. Barr.

Since then Commissioner C. C. McGovern has had the misfortune to break his ankle. His physician said yesterday he would not leave the hospital for several weeks and would have to take extraordinary care for six months to escape a permanent deformity of the foot.

It becomes increasingly evident that Commissioner Mansfield owes it to the people of Allegheny County to resign his seat in the State Senate and be prepared throughout his term of office to give his full time to his duties as commissioner.

The extent to which illness has interfered with the county's business indicates how undesirable it will be for one of the commissioners to be at Harrisburg for weeks at a time and occupied with senatorial duties at other times.

Hospitals' Good Work

The Community Owes These Institutions a Debt of Gratitude for Their Charitable Service.

In connection with the meeting of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania in Pittsburgh today, Wednesday and Thursday, attention is called to the great amount of free service rendered by the local hospitals.

Forty per cent of the hospital service furnished in Pittsburgh during the past year went to charity patients.

The financial aid received from the state amounted to only one-fifth of the hospitals' expenditures on charity patients.

The hospitals of Pittsburgh, considered as a whole, ended the year with a deficit of $317,116.

There is a good deal of complaint about the high cost of hosiptal treatment. It falls heavy on people in modest circumstances. But people might well be less critical in view of the great amount of free service given and the losses sustained.

Cheese-Paring Bad, Too

Economy Is Praiseworthy, But It Can Be Carried to an Undesirable Extreme.

With a view to reducing expenses Gov. Pinchot announces that the correspondence of his office will be conducted as far as possible on postcards, and that he may extend the plan to other departments of the state government. How will he make copies of his communications?

He thinks he may be able in this way to save a good deal of money for the commonwealth.

On the other hand, he will cause a loss to the United States government, already so hard pressed that it is thinking of raising the letter rate from 2 to 3 cents as a means of raising additional revenue.

Economy is praiseworthy if not carried to an extreme. Cheese-paring may be as great an evil as extravagance.

It is desirable that normal expenditures shall be maintained by those whose incomes permit it. Judicious spending helps business, helps the whole community.

Feeding the Birds

Everyone Who Lives in the Suburbs Can Help to Protect Our Feathered Friends.

Aviators scattered hundreds of pounds of grain over nearby areas Saturday to save game birds from starvation.

The snow and ice that cover the countryside have made things difficult not only for the quail, grouse and wild turkeys, but also for the song birds.

Residents of the suburbs would be doing a kindly act and at the same time would provide themselves with entertainment if they would put up bird feeding stations in their back yard—that is, a place where seed, bread crumbs and the like can be put out for the birds without danger of being covered with snow, yet not so sheltered that the birds cannot find it.

Even in neighborhoods where birds are not much in evidence cardinals, chickadees, juncos, song sparrows and other species will soon be attracted if feed is spread out for them at seasons when they cannot easily find it unaided.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 15.—There's no stopping the parade of show-offs who peacock down the aisles at New York first nights. It's an indelible streak in the Manhattan crazy quilt—the urge to be seen, admired, and smarten things up. They are annoying to those who came just to see the performance.

These plumed gallants are responsible for the futility of the gesture to lift curtains on time. They regard 9 o'clock—save at the openings of Gilbert Miller who utterly ignores them—soon enough to arrive for an 8:30 curtain. Many indeed arrive in the middle of the first act.

Nor is it unusual for them to lurch in with a cocktail glow. At times they yap like excited spaniels to the discomfort of the audience and players trying to deliver lines. In two instances this season performances came to dead halt. In one instance, during a calm, was a collective hiss.

But when lights come on at the end of the first act they "put on their act." They wave across the theater, shout to acquaintances, real and imaginary, disregard fire laws by lighting cigarets moving toward the lobby and knot in critical coils on the sidewalk.

Noel Coward, upon seeing his first New York premiere, observed: "So much taste and all of it bad." Every first night has its quota of the ermine wrapped who exit and return later to call to someone so all may hear: "I've just been back stage to see soandso"—naming the star.

What they really did was to walk up and down in front of the theater. Oddly enough some of the worst mannered people at openings are those you expect to be models of polite conduct—often men and women whose hyphenated names figure prominently in Cholly Knickerbocker's column.

With an exception or so, the most self-effacing first nighters are members of The Death Watch—the critics. This brigade invariably arrives early. George Nathan is often first to arrive. And for the most part they remain quietly in their seats even during intervals when everybody rushes to the lobby.

The passing of the minstrel tenor with a Honey Boy Evans or Will Oakland voice is a disappointing tweak for many. A life ambition was to be the golden singer who stepped one step forward out of the quartet to sing, "Go Forth and Find." I ached to follow that custom of twisting a cap into an anguished knot while trying to straddle a high one. Most of us know this cap-twisting was just a comeon. The note was in the bag all the time. But it was corking drama.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

It's a simple little story, but in the light of human history, it's dynamite.

She's 26. He's 32. They've been married seven years. Joyful years at first. Pretty little home. Nice little car. All a fairy tale to Mary, moving over from Dad's house to Jim's.

But the fairy tale is over now. The pretty little house has gone, and the car. Jim hasn't had a steady position for two years. Mary, fortunate, has a job with one of her father's old friends. She's carrying them both, and things are bound to pick up pretty soon. But in the meantime—

"Something's wrong," writes Mary. "It isn't that I mind working. I really like it. And I don't mind supporting Jim, either. He isn't deliberately loafing; he'd give anything for a job. And I'm good enough sport to know that, in this modern world, it's as much up to the woman to carry the load as it is up to the man. I realize all that, and yet—

"EVEN THOUGH I TELL MYSELF ALL THESE THINGS, I CAN'T HELP FEELING A CHANGE IN MY HEART. I'M SURE I STILL LOVE JIM, BUT IT IS A DIFFERENT KIND OF LOVE THAN I FELT WHEN WE WERE FIRST MARRIED. SOMETHING HAPPENS TO MARRIAGE WHEN THE WOMAN WORKS AND THE MAN DOESN'T.

"I want to feel about Jim the way mother felt about my father, but I can't. Mother and dad used to squabble, but away down in her heart she always looked up to him. She always felt dad could do just anything. And that is the way I felt about Jim when we married.

"But I don't feel that way about him any more. He's a dear, and I'm awfully sorry for him; but sometimes I am terrified at my own heart. I wonder if I really respect him any more?

"CAN A WOMAN RESPECT A MAN IN THE OLD WAY—THE WAY HER MOTHER DID—IF SHE IS SUPPORTING HIM?"

NO, I don't suppose she can, Mary. BUT PERHAPS SHE CAN RESPECT HIM IN A BETTER WAY.

Was that old feeling which wives had for husbands really respect for the man himself—or was it respect for the man's pocketbook and the comfort and security which that pocketbook provided?

Mind you, I'm not denying that the old-fashioned wife loved her husband. But that other feeling—that idea that "he could do almost anything"—was that based on love, or was it based on THE WIFE'S DEPENDENCE AND THE HUSBAND'S ECONOMIC ADVANTAGE?

I suspect that economics had much to do with it, Mary.

And now the glamour's gone, Jim no longer has a job. Even if he has, you may have a better one.

YOU HAVE LOST THE SENTIMENTAL SWEETNESS OF DEPENDENCE, WHICH, MAYBE WASN'T SO DAGGONED SWEET AFTER ALL; BUT YOU HAVE GAINED AN INFINITELY FINER AND PROUDER RELATIONSHIP, IF YOU HAVE THE SENSE TO SEE IT. YOU HAVE GAINED EQUALITY.

You can no longer "look up" to Jim, but you can do something better. You and Jim can look TOGETHER—from the same plane—toward the same goal.

If you can't respect Jim as a strong provider, you can respect him for a much more real and lasting reason. YOU CAN RESPECT HIM AS A MAN. YOU CAN LOVE AND UNDERSTAND HIM, NOT BECAUSE HE IS A MEAL TICKET, BUT BECAUSE HE IS A STRUGGLING HUMAN SOUL SHARING YOUR OWN WEAKNESS AND STRENGTH, YOUR OWN DREAMS AND REBELLIONS, FEARS AND TEARS.

And if you aren't big enough to respect Jim on that score, Mary, then I suspect the trouble lies in YOU, not in Jim.

Survey of Conventions Of a Century

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

This year marks the centennial anniversary of the campaign in which, for the first time, the Presidential candidates received their commissions from a convention. It happens, however, that the very first convention was that of the Anti-Mason party which met in Baltimore in September, 1831.

It was an assembly not without distinction in many of its members. There were not a few, like Seward and Thurlow Weed, who later, were to become leaders in a party not then formed. Although his admirers make no point of it, it appears that John Marshall was not unsympathetic, and he was mentioned for the Presidential nomination.

Justice John McLean, the perennial presidential candidate on any ticket that would take him, was an aspirant. The nomination went to William Wirt, one of the greatest forensic orators in the country whose classic speech against Burr, touching upon the fate of the Blennerhassets, is still quoted by school boys. He made no contest, however, since he was devoted to Clay, the Whig nominee, and took the nomination in the hope of contributing to Clay's election.

The Whigs held their convention in December, 1831, nominating Clay and adopting the first party platform in history—a very brief pronouncement. It too was held in Baltimore, and there too the Democrats met in 1832 and renamed Jackson. That was the first Democratic convention. It adopted the two-thirds rule but no platform.

Some Dramatic Exceptions

Four years later the Whigs strangely enough held no convention, though the Democrats did, but since then the convention has been as inevitable as taxes. In most of these conventions the contests for nominations have been speedily over. Dramatic exceptions there have been, as in the Democratic convention of 1844, when, after nine ballots, Polk was named—the first dark horse. He had not received a vote until the ballot before the last. Another dark horse was named in 1852 after 48 futile ballots—Pierce.

The first Democratic convention of 1860 adjourned without nomination after 57 ballots. From 1860 on, the Democratic nominations came early in the voting until 1912, when Wilson was victorious after Champ Clark had polled a majority of the votes.

The most desperately contested Republican convention in history was that of 1880 when a dark horse, Garfield, was named on the thirty-sixth ballot. The prolongation of the fight was due to the stubborn adherence of the Grant men, who did not falter or change from beginning to end. Roscoe Conkling led them, and Blaine, his enemy, himself a candidate, was second in the fight. It was the Blaine men who finally went to Garfield and ended the struggle.

Harrison Was To Win

We have been hearing that deadlocks and prolonged balloting are more probable when there are a multitude of candidates. This is not borne out by the records.

The Republican convention of 1880, with its 36 ballots, found only six candidates in the field, one of whom never received more than 10 votes, another never more than 35, another never more than 30. The long contest was due here to the fact that the two leaders, Blaine and Garfield, had fanatically loyal supporters and were not far apart.

In the Republican convention of 1888 there were 12 candidates, none of whom stood out in the popular imagination except Blaine, who was being voted for against his wishes. John Sherman led easily, Walter Q. Gresham came second, Russell A. Alger ran third, and Harrison fourth. The feeling in that convention was between Gresham and Harrison, both Hoosiers and long rivals in their state.

Harrison was to win, and four years later Gresham was to support Cleveland against him and be rewarded with the portfolio of state. But with all these candidates, the decision was reached in eight ballots, Harrison, beginning with 80 votes, increased his strength on each ballot until the seventh, when for the first time he forged ahead of Sherman, the leader. That settled it.

Democrats Have a Little The Best of It

In the early days of conventions most of the pow-wows were held in Baltimore. All three conventions a century ago were held there. After that it got the Democratic conventions in 1836, 1840, 1844, 1848, 1852, 1860, 1872 and 1912. The Whigs met in Baltimore in 1844 and 1852. But since 1860 Chicago has been a favorite with the Republicans, less of a favorite with the Democrats.

The latter, who meet there this year, have nominated but four times in the city on the lake. Their first nomination made there was in 1864, when McClellan was named. Cleveland was nominated there two out of three times. He was elected in 1884 and 1892. And Bryan was nominated there in 1896.

While the Democrats lost the election in 1896, that convention rejuvenated the party and made it a militant force, and but for the extraordinary methods employed, the unprecedented amount of money used, the intimidation and coercion resorted to, Bryan would have won that year at the polls. The Republicans nominate also in Chicago this year, and three out of the four times they have been defeated they held their convention in that city. As far as superstition runs, the Democrats have a little the best of it.

Republicans Went to Both Jefferson and Jackson

It is interesting to note the lengthening of the party platforms, and the increasing disposition of the party leaders to find a place in the setting forth of policies and principles for as many little groups as possible. In the early days the platforms were concise, concentrated on one or two issues.

In convention after convention in the earlier days the Democratic platform set forth the Jeffersonian code, and expanded little upon it—a program that is almost too good to be true this year. The planks of some of the platforms are curious to us today. What more curious than this from the platform on which Lincoln ran in 1860:

"Resolved that the maintenance inviolate of the rights of the states and especially the right of each state to order and control its own domestic institutions according to its own judgment exclusively, is essential to that balance of power on which the perfection and endurance of our political fabric depends."

Equally curious, another plank quoting the words of Jefferson in the preamble of the Declaration, concluding that the maintenance of the ideal "is essential to the preservation of our republican institutions: and that the Federal Constitution, the rights of the states, and the union of the states must and shall be preserved."

Here in one plank the Republicans went to both Jefferson and Jackson, for the words "union of the states must and shall be preserved" are from Jackson's famous toast at the Jefferson banquet 100 years ago.

A Plank in the Platform of 1880

A reference to minor party platforms would be consoling to nervous Americans now, for generations ago demands were made as radical as anything ever heard today. The Prohibition party platforms are interesting, too; especially one plank in the platform of 1880 which has special interest in these days of the deficit and mounting taxes:

"To remove the apprehension of some who allege that a loss of public revenue would follow the suppression of the direct trade, we confidently point to the experience of governments abroad which shows that thrift and revenue from the consumption of legitimate manufactures and commerce have so largely followed the abolition of drink as to fully supply all loss of liquor taxes."
